

Democratic Platform Condemns Republicans

State Platform Criticises Republican National Administration and Republican Assembly—Praises Smith Policies—Denounces Klan—Favors Amendment to Volstead Act—Makes Many Promises.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Emphatic condemnation of the Ku Klux Klan, a declaration in favor of the modification of the Volstead Act, bitter criticism of the Republican administration at Washington and praise for Governor Alfred E. Smith's administration were the high spots in the platform adopted at the closing session today of the Democratic State convention.

The platform pledged the party to again support the joint resolution, passed by the Democratic Senate and defeated by the Republican Assembly, permitting the people to vote upon an amendment to the Constitution, which, if adopted, would increase the ability of the cities to enlarge municipal water systems, and also permit New York city to enlarge its principal transit system by increasing its debt limit.

"In several cities of the state," the platform says, "there is imperative necessity for the enlargement of the city-owned railroad systems and other municipal activities, but the Republican party in the Assembly has refused to allow a referendum vote of the people on such questions."

Declaration also is made that every city should have the right to regulate the quality of service rendered, and the rates charged, within the city, by any public utility corporation, and that every city should be permitted to decide for itself, questions of municipal ownership or operation of any form of public utility.

Attacks Republicans.
Under a sub-head entitled "Republican Corruption," the platform makers wrote:

"Every party is to be judged by its record. Honesty in government is the issue. Dishonesty cannot be condoned by silence. The Republican administration cannot evade responsibility for its record of misconduct."

"The Republican leaders want the electorate to forget the astounding revelations of Republican corruption. They want the nation to forget that the Republican candidate for president presided over the Senate and sat with the cabinet while the sick and wounded veterans of the World War were neglected and mistreated, and while millions of public funds appropriated for their benefit were stolen and squandered."

"The Republican leaders want the people to forget that their candidate, though fully informed, remained silent while the nation's priceless naval reserves, set aside for the national defense, were secretly and corruptly turned over to the favored capitalists for exploitation."

Condemns Ku Klux Klan.
Never before has the Ku Klux Klan been so roundly denounced more bitterly than in this platform, the Democratic leaders declared. The plank dealing with the hooded order reads:

"We reaffirm the pledge of the Democratic national platform to defend and maintain the Constitutional liberties of citizens of all races and of all classes and of all religions. We unequivocally condemn the Ku Klux Klan. It seeks to subject the sovereign state to the will and wishes of its own invisible empire. It further seeks to create intolerance by secret appeal and masked attack against particular classes, based on race, religion or color. Its objects and its activities are diametrically opposed to the fundamental principle upon which our government was founded and to the liberal principles of the Democratic party. We decline its cooperation. We spurn its support."

Favors Amending Volstead Act.
Regarding the Volstead Act, the platform said:

"The attitude of the present national administration to the enforcement of the Volstead Act is one of hypocrisy designed to delude the people into the belief that prohibition is effective while in fact the law is neither honestly nor efficiently upheld. We pledge the Democratic party to a continuance of the policy of enforcement of every law."

"Recognizing that the interpretation of the Eighteenth amendment to the Federal constitution expressed in the Volstead Act has resulted in widespread contempt and violation of the law, in illegal traffic in liquors and in official corruption, we insist upon Congress enacting such modification of the Volstead Act as shall legalize, subject to the approval of the people of the state of New York, the use of beer and light wines under such careful restrictions as were imposed by the law passed in New York in 1920."

The National Ticket.
After pledging its unqualified approval of the Democratic ticket the platform pledged the "unfettered efforts" of New York State Democrats to bring about its election.

"The reactionary candidate of the Republican party stands for the identical forces of privilege that brought about the scandals of Fall, Denby, Daugherty, Burns, Forbes and Newberry," the platform declares.

Other high lights in the platform follow.

The State Administration.
"The history of the Empire State contains no brighter pages than those recording the administration of Alfred E. Smith, favorite son of the people of New York, without regard to party."

"Governor Smith has given the state the best, cleanest, the most business-like and at the same time the most human and progressive administration in its history."

Condemnation of Republican Assembly.
"The Republican Assembly brazenly defeated important progressive measures which had received the overwhelming endorsement of the people at the polls, and were recommended by the Democratic governor and passed by the Democratic Senate."

"We condemn the Republican Assembly for the refusal to enact legislation that would give to the cities of the state the power to regulate their own utilities."

"The Republican Assembly insists on retaining a state public service and a state transit commission which in all their dealings has shown themselves to be subservient to the traction, gas, telephone and electric trusts."

"They refused to give municipalities the power to establish and operate bus lines and other public utilities."

"They refused to enact the measure designed to give the people of the state the right to amend the constitution so as to permit the issuance by municipalities, under proper safeguard for securities for the creation of urgently needed transit, water supply and public high way facilities."

"They defeated the proposal for the development of the water power of the state under public ownership for the benefit of all the people."

Public Utilities.
"We maintain that every city should have delegated to it the right to regulate the quality of service rendered and the rates charged within the city by any public utility corporation, and we pledge the enactment of legislation vesting the cities with power to own and control the operation of local transportation, light and power facilities."

"We pledge our representatives again to support the joint resolution which was passed by the Democratic Senate and defeated by the Republican Assembly, permitting the people of the state to vote upon an amendment to the Constitution, which, if adopted, would increase the ability of cities to enlarge municipal water systems and also permit the city of New York to enlarge its municipal transit system. In several cities of the state there is imperative necessity for the enlargement of the railroad systems and other municipal activities, but the Republican majority in the Assembly has refused to allow a referendum vote of the people on such questions."

Water Power.
"We favor development of state-owned water power, under state ownership and control, for the benefit of all the people."

"We advocate the establishment of a state agency for the development of our water power resources along the lines recommended by Governor Smith and the development of these resources by the state in the interest of the people as against their exploitation for private interests."

Reconstruction of State Government.
"We further pledge the Democratic party in this state to continue to advocate the constructive, forward-looking measures designed to improve the conduct of the state's business which won the approval of the leading men and women in this state irrespective of party affiliation."

Soldiers' Bonus.
"We deplore that fact that the Republican Legislature so drew the soldiers' bonus amendment to the Constitution as to make it ineffectual for the state to provide for the dependents of men who gave their lives over seas to our country. We promise to remedy their mistake at the earliest possible moment."

Grade Crossing.
"The growth of our cities and the large increase in the use of automobiles are taking an annual total of human life that is appalling. We insist that the slaughter of human beings at railroad crossings must stop and in order to bring that about

Biography and American Spirit

Theme of Two Addresses at Teachers' Institute by Dr. Schumacher, Who Pays Tribute to Famous Americans.

After the opening exercises at the Ulster County Teachers' Institute at the high school this morning, Dr. Charles A. Schumacher, head of the English department of the Oneonta Normal School, spoke to the teachers on "Biography for the Grades." Dr. Schumacher defined biography as a record of man's life. He counted the greatest influence in the world to be a strong life. The state department of education provides wonderful material for the study of biography in the grades, according to the speaker. It includes the lives of Longfellow, Whitier, Lowell and Scott, all poets for the grades. To know where these men lived, what they did, what they felt and thought helps all thoughtful and earnest children. The speaker developed at some length the life of Longfellow. For Longfellow is our own poet whose poems are studied in the first few grades.

Dr. Schumacher noted three prominent things in the life of Longfellow. He loved America. He was eager that his poems should increase the beauty of American life. His was the gift of genius in rare measure, for to know excellence in reverence is the greatest measure of education. Finally the speaker emphasized the beauty of Longfellow's soul, closing with the tribute by Emerson to Longfellow: "He has a beautiful soul."

The next feature on the program consisted of several supervisory district meetings and then a short recess.

America Protects Individual

Following the recess Dr. Schumacher was given an enthusiastic greeting as he stepped on the platform to speak again, this time on "The Spirit of America." The speaker recalled that last year he gave the teachers some idea of leading up to and giving the children the thought contained in "The Man Without a Country," who finally came to love his country with the intensest love. It is only in America that the individual has the privilege to make just as much of himself as is possible. Here there is no caprice of the minority or domination of the majority from which the individual is not protected. It is the indwelling spirit of America and if we live it our children will catch the spirit.

Dr. Schumacher profoundly impressed his hearers with his presentation of the threefold spirit of America: The religious spirit; the spirit of compassion; the spirit of patriotism.

By quotations from great writers and thinkers and from history he concluded the divine mission of America to be to protect the individual, for whom the whole universe exists. The American religious spirit stood out preeminently in Washington, the father of his country; in Lincoln, the savior of his country. Dr. Schumacher said he awaited the third man who shall come to help complete America's divine mission that has so far been directed by Jehovah.

Out of the love of God must come men of compassion. Stories of the Civil War and the World War showed plainly the compassion of America and Americans. And the love of God and of man, making for the intensest bravery finds in America just as sincere tenderness going hand in hand with that bravery, true patriotism when felt toward and lived for our country. Dr. Schumacher considered there was no finer picture of American religion, compassion and patriotism than that to be found in the poem, "The Old Man and Jim."

The afternoon program included an address by Dr. Brubecker on "Education and Freedom," and the annual greeting by Dr. Michael.

It Happened in Kingston.

Someone signing himself "Sam Forrest" writes to The Sun Dial column of the New York Sun of Thursday:

"I asked the station agent at Kingston if the last ferry at night to Rhinecliff arrived in time to catch the last train to Albany as per schedule. He said, 'Yes, the ferry arrives in time, but very often the train doesn't wait for it.'"

We advocate the program proposed by Governor Smith and in part adopted at the last session of the Legislature looking to the speedy elimination of all dangerous railroad crossings.

Public Improvements.
"We favor the re-passage by the Legislature of the proposed amendment to the Constitution authorizing the issuance over a period of ten years of bonds for the improvement of the public works of the state."

"We pledge the necessary appropriations to complete the bridge across the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie started under the present Democratic administration."

"We favor federal appropriations for the deepening of the Hudson River to Troy in order that the port of Albany may be open to ocean commerce."

The platform also pledged the party to "labor unceasingly" to secure home rule for all cities of the state; to work for the restoration of direct primaries for the nomination of all elective officers; to do everything possible to remove all unjust discrimination against women; to continue to work for legislation urged by the State Federation of Labor and endorsed the comprehensive park program inaugurated by Governor Smith.

Codale's Ford Held Up Railroad

West Park Man Fined $20 by Judge Groves Who Forbade Him to Drive Car Home and Notified License Bureau to Refuse a Permit to Drive.

John Codale, an Italian from West Park, came to Kingston in a Ford runabout today, and before he left the city he had paid a fine of $20 after trying to block traffic on the Ulster & Delaware railroad. He had been arrested by Officer Roosa of the West Shore police force.

From the story told Judge Groves in police court, Codale had driven into Kingston and got in a traffic jam uptown and then had driven down Broadway. He turned into Railroad avenue and did not stop until his Ford had become wedged between the rails on the main track of the Ulster & Delaware railroad. It took the strength and services of about a dozen men to remove the car from the tracks.

Judge Groves imposed a fine of $20 and informed Codale that he was not fit to drive a car and forbade him to drive it home. The judge also got in communication with the automobile inspector who is busy here issuing the necessary driver's licenses under the new law effective the first of the month and instructed him not to issue a driver's permit to Codale as he was not a fit person to be operating a car.

Woman Burned, Home Destroyed

Mrs. Jacob Holmes of Catskill is in the Benedictine Hospital severely burned all over the body as the result of a fire that destroyed the family home at Catskill this morning.

Mrs. Holmes was in the house at the time and her clothing ignited she was carried from the burning building by her husband. When it was found that she was badly burned about the body, she was rushed here in an ambulance. Her condition is quite serious. The cause of the fire was not ascertained.

Bannon to Keep Gov. Smith Warm

The contract for installing a new heating system in the executive mansion, conservatories and garage at Albany, has been awarded to the L. F. Bannon Company of this city.

The contract calls for the installation of two big Richmond steam boilers of 14,200 feet capacity. When the job is completed Governor Smith and his family will find no trouble in keeping warm this winter.

JONES AND VON ELM WILL PLAY IN FINALS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Ardmore, Penna., Sept. 26.—Finalists in the National Amateur Golf Championship were virtually determined beyond the peradventure of chance today when Bobby Jones led Francis Ouimet, 8 up, and George Von Elm topped Max Marston, defending champion, by 6 up at the end of 18 holes play in the semifinal round. Ouimet and Marston were outplayed completely, the former winning only one hole from Jones during the morning round.

Von Elm got the jump on Marston after making the turn for home one up. He shot the final nine in 35 against the champion's 41, their medal scores being 76 and 84 respectively.

SAXE HAS ISSUED 9,500 LICENSES.

Up to noon today about 9,500 licenses had been issued to motor vehicle operators at the county clerk's office. County Clerk Saxe expected to issue by Saturday evening 10,000 licenses. In order to accommodate a late rush of applicants the motor vehicle bureau at the clerk's office will be kept open during Saturday afternoon. Inspector Joseph McDonnell, of the state motor bureau, gave 38 road tests to applicants for chauffeur license this morning.

BRAKEMAN KILLED AT PRESIDENT'S TRAIN.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 26.—The President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to the White House from Philadelphia early today unaware that their special train killed a man on the return journey.

The man was M. D. Plaine, a brakeman, who had climbed atop the tender. As the train went under a bridge on the outskirts of Baltimore he was struck and thrown from the train, dying almost instantly.

JONES AGREES TO PAY BILL IN INSTALLMENTS

Sam Jones, a brickyard hand at East Kingston, was arrested Thursday on a warrant charging him with defrauding a boarding house keeper out of four weeks' board bill. Thursday evening Jones was taken by Deputy Sheriff Ellsworth before Judge Walter Webber at Flatbush, where he agreed to liquidate the board bill by paying in weekly installments.

Democrats Ready To Name Smith

By Telegram to The Freeman.
The Arena, Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26.—What is expected to be the final session of the 1924 Democratic State convention got underway here at 12:36 o'clock standard time today, with the delegates anxious to stage a demonstration for Governor Al Smith.

The convention was nearly two hours late in starting.

The invocation was given by Rabbi Benjamin Friedman of Syracuse. So confident were they that Governor Smith and all the other present state officers would be renominated by the middle of the afternoon that a majority made train reservations for early this evening.

The delegates were slow in reaching the big drill shed. A half hour after the appointed time for the session to open there was only a sprinkling of delegates present. The galleries however, filled up rapidly after the band struck up some popular airs.

When Mrs. Smith, wife of the governor, entered the hall the galleries stood and applauded. With a party of a half dozen others, she occupied a box near the speaker's platform.

A negro in the gallery kept the delegates and spectators in good humor with banjo selections and popular songs. The band then struck up "The Sidewalks of New York," the governor's favorite piece, and everyone joined in singing the chorus.

William Church Osborn was elected permanent chairman of the convention. He was warmly applauded when he appeared on the platform.

Picturing Governor Smith as a "fighter without bitterness" and a "friend without favorites," Osborn paid a glowing tribute to New York state's Democratic governor. He said in part:

"No one can deny that Al Smith is a stout two-handed fighter, but he has so conducted himself that his heaviest blows have left no bitterness because he has ever been just. He has been indeed a fighter without bitterness and a friend without favorites. For those of us who wish to see the peace and progress of the state move ever forward as the result of the consultation of many minds, this spirit of friendly desire to cooperate has been of priceless value. The gift of the spirit has led us to a sane view of the course of true progress in public affairs."

"There are those who would have us believe that progress is a destructive force and that only by clearing out the painfully acquired gains of ages of political effort, discarding all that experience has taught us, can we arrive at the haven of political perfection."

"We have learned from the spirit at Albany that real progress is constructive, and means development from hour to hour, from day to day, and from year to year of considered plans and principles. We have seen a studied program announced in 1918, and carried forward unrelentingly year by year, we have seen a consistent development and improvement of our state institutions, which is a source of constant pride and pleasure; we have seen a broadening of the state's activities and a humanizing of the state life, which by every test make true progress. Yet these things have been accompanied by a judicious care and business management well illustrated by the fact that the state has just made a great issue of bonds on a 3 1/2 per cent basis."

"Working with a spirit which has brought the government close to the people, has been vigorous without rancor and progressive without radicalism—is it any wonder that for the last two years under Alfred E. Smith we have truly had government 'with the consent of the governed'?"

When Chairman Osborn referred to the administration of Governor Smith a wave of applause swept the hall.

There was another outburst when he declared that "in the presence of corruption, John W. Davis will neither be cool nor cautious, but will strike the heavy blows of a true leader."

The delegates and spectators rose in their seats and cheered when State Senator James J. Walker appeared on the speaker's stand and started to read the platform.

When Walker mentioned Smith's name a second time, the band struck up "The Sidewalks of New York." There was marked applause when he mentioned the name of Woodrow Wilson, the late president of the United States.

Delegates Show Enthusiasm.
When Walker read the plank favoring modification of the Volstead law, the applause was almost deafening. The band struck up "How Dry I Am," and the delegates and spectators cheered it to the echo.

Next came the plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan. This brought the delegates to their feet, cheering loudly. The band played "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and the applause continued.

When Walker read that part of the plank in which the Democratic party "scorns support of the Klan," another wave of cheering swept the hall. Then the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The platform was adopted unanimously.

State Senator William T. Byrne of Albany then appeared on the platform and started to place Governor Smith in nomination. Byrne eloquently declared that the governor "not only will carry his party to victory in New York state, but through out the nation."

"Explode Smith Myth" To be Roosevelt Slogan

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Nominated for Governor, Promptly Starts for Washington to Resign as Assistant Secretary of Navy—Balance of State Ticket Named—No Delay in Starting Campaign.

Roosevelt Quits Navy Department

Prompt in Placing Resignation as Assistant Secretary in Hands of President Coolidge, Who Accepts It—Predicts Success of Republican Ticket.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 26.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who has received the Republican nomination for the governorship of New York, resigned today as assistant secretary of the navy and his resignation was accepted by President Coolidge. It is effective immediately.

Colonel Roosevelt reached Washington this morning and went straight to the White House to relinquish his post so that he could launch immediately into his campaign. He was closeted with the president for half an hour, and emerged smiling.

"I told the President," Roosevelt said, "that New York state would give him an unparalleled majority in November and that the whole Republican ticket from top to bottom would be elected."

Colonel Roosevelt was the picture of confidence as he talked with newspapermen after leaving the president's office. He said he was leaving Washington tonight for his home in Oyster Bay where there will immediately begin conferences between the Republican leaders of New York, to map out campaign plans. Plans that had been made for Colonel Roosevelt to go on a speaking tour for the Republican National ticket were cancelled. He was to have opened his tour at Logansport, Ind., tomorrow.

"I can do more good in New York state than anywhere else," he said.

While Roosevelt was discussing the situation in the lobby of the executive office, he received his first campaign contribution.

Colonel Edwin A. Simmons, a New York publisher, waiting to see the president, presented him with a check for $500, and wished him luck.

There was no indication at the White House today as to Colonel Roosevelt's probable successor in the navy department.

ARKVILLE WOMAN RAISED RUCTION IN LUNCH ROOM

Miss Emma Fisher, 27 years old, of Arkville, was arrested shortly after 3 o'clock this morning in the White Tile Lunch on Railroad avenue by Officer Arthur J. Dempsey. Later in the morning she was arraigned in police court before Judge Robert G. Groves on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and entered a plea of not guilty. At her request the hearing was adjourned to Monday morning. Judge Groves fixed the amount of bail at $250.

According to the police, Emma raised a ruction in the lunch room, hauled grapefruit around and using rough language. They also said she was very drunk. At police headquarters it was also said that Emma is now out on bail of $1,000 awaiting a hearing on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house.

NORTH RIVER PRESBYTERIAL SOCIETY MEETING.

The semi-annual meeting of North River Presbyterian Society will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, Kingston, on Tuesday, September 30, beginning at 10:15. Mrs. A. W. Karnell of Philadelphia, a speaker of national reputation, will give an address on "Ellis Island, the Gateway of the Nation." The ladies of the Rondout Presbyterian Church held a special meeting at the close of prayer meeting last night and arranged for a banner attendance and basket lunch.

Advice to Motorists.

Officials of the Liberty Automobile Club Thursday advised motorists travelling to New York city to take the east shore road to Rhinebeck and ferry over to Kingston. The west shore road, officials said, is now under construction at Athens and Catskill. The east shore is now open and in excellent condition.

Bicycles Stolen.

It was reported to the police that several bicycles in the village of Saugerties were stolen recently, one belonging to William Van Buskirk of Parition street and another the property of John Mickle of Dock street.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 26.—"Explode the Smith myth."

This will be the battle cry of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for governor, in the forthcoming state campaign, according to Republican leaders who were leaving here today for their homes.

Friends of Colonel Roosevelt today predicted he would center his attack on Governor Smith and Tammany Hall. The colonel will fire the opening gun of his campaign when he is formally notified of his nomination at his Oyster Bay home on Wednesday, October 1, at 3 p. m.

Arrangements for the notification ceremonies are in the hands of the members of the Republican State Committee. Some of the members said they expected the notification would take place next Wednesday night. The ceremony, they said, would be broadcast by radio.

If some of the Republican leaders have their way, Colonel Roosevelt not only will campaign in virtually every city in the state but will invade the rural districts.

With Colonel Roosevelt on one side and Governor Al Smith on the other, both regarded by their party as extraordinary campaigners, it was predicted here today the campaign will be one of the hottest the state has witnessed in years.

Colonel Roosevelt left here last night for Washington and will promptly resign as assistant secretary of the navy and immediately launch the campaign.

The leaders were unanimous in declaring they believed the present ticket was the best balanced, geographically, that has ever been nominated by a Republican State convention.

Associated on the ticket with Colonel Roosevelt are:

Lieutenant-Governor, Seymour Lowman, of Elmira, present state senator.

Secretary of State, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, of Syracuse.

Attorney General, Albert Ottinger, of Brooklyn.

Comptroller, Vincent B. Murphy, of Rochester, state assemblyman.

Treasurer, Lewis H. Founds, of Brooklyn.

ULSTER SPLIT ITS VOTE ON GOVERNOR.

Ulster county's ten delegates to the Republican state convention at Rochester split their votes on the roll call to nominate the candidate for governor, six votes being cast for Col. Theodore Roosevelt and four votes going to Col. William Hayward.

Col. Roosevelt, like his father, always has been popular in Ulster county, and both have spoken at public meetings here. Col. Roosevelt's last appearance in Kingston was at the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau picnic at Forsyth Park several years ago.

Col. Hayward is well known in this city, where he spoke before the Men's Club of the First Dutch Church last winter. Among the assistant district attorneys appointed by him are John M. Cashin of this city and DuBois J. Gillette of Port Ewen.

ANNUAL PINOCCHLE PARTY OF FRANKLIN LODGE, K. OF P.

The annual pinocchle party of Franklin Lodge, No. 37, Knights of Pythias, will be held Monday night at Pythian Hall, corner of Broadway and Thomas street. The committee in charge of the affair has secured some very substantial and attractive prizes which will be awarded the winners. The doors will be open at 8:15 o'clock and playing will commence promptly at 8:45. An invitation is extended to all who enjoy a good game of pinocchle.

An important but short meeting of Franklin Lodge will be held Monday evening promptly at 7 o'clock and a large attendance is requested as there will be a delegation from Buffalo present. The session of the lodge will be short in order that it may be over in time to start the pinocchle party on time.

Dance Saturday Night.

There will be a dance at White Eagle Hall, Saturday evening, September 27, under the auspices of the Polish Sick and Aid Society. Music will be furnished by McLean's orchestra.

Navy's Heating System.

David Navy has had a Dunham vapor heating system installed in his residence, No. 105 Wurts street, by the L. F. Bannon Company.

service will be opened with a selection by the band. This band compares favorably with Pryor's and Sousa's. Colonel Jenkins will preach the sermon. Mr. Boeve will give the children's story. Interested friends are cordially invited to this service.Chinese Magistrate Sells Opium as CureNanking, China.—The magistrate of Chinyanghsien recently confiscated large stores of opium in his bailwick, and his praises were sung far and wide by the people of the province.
They had been compelled by force to cultivate the poppy and subjected to heavy fines and taxation, and they believed the magistrate was seeking their welfare.Subsequently the magistrate put on the market some pills which he advertised as a sure cure for the opium habit. For this he received renewed plaudits and his pill business prospered.Then it was discovered that all the fines collected for trafficking in opium went into the magistrate's pocket and that he used the confiscated drug to make his "antipium" pills. As punishment, when the authorities learned of his double dealing, he was warned to take his pills off the market.Roosevelt Service which hung from Sagamore Hill, home of the late Theodore Roosevelt, during the World war has been presented to the memorial museum at Roosevelt house, New York city.The flag, measuring 3 by 4 feet, and of the familiar red and white design, has four blue stars worked in the center.

It fluttered from an upper window of the colonel's Oyster Bay home.
It was placed there the day of enlistment of the first member of the family and not removed until the last of the Roosevelts returned from overseas service.The four sons were all decorated ceded any outbreak of the northern lights, has dissipated the mystery of the green hue that has always been unexplained by scientific men. The scientific world has not entirely accepted his assumption, but regards it as more satisfactory as an explanation than the old theory that certain luminous gases caused this exceptionally beautiful effect just before the fantastic flashes.Origin of Postal SystemIn olden times, before the days of postage stamps, it was the custom for the recipient of a letter to pay the postage. It is said that the origin of prepaid postage was due to an ardent lover. He sent epistles to the lady of his choice, who promptly sent them back, refusing to pay for them. The postman suggested to authorities that it would save trouble if the sender paid postage, and the idea was adopted.High Prices for AnimalsThe bureau of animal industry says that the highest price ever paid for a horse was $205,000. This was a thoroughbred horse purchased by August Belmont from an Englishman. The highest price paid for a bull was $100,- 000. There are several instances where dairy cows have been purchased for amounts over $25,000.I Never Burn

My skin

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I live in the sun and the wind in summer, but I never burn my skin. That is because the greatest of experts told me how to prevent it.Edna Wallace Hopper
for the skin—get all you can of it.
Only certain rays
—the ultra violet
—do harm.
But science has found a way to do that without changing the skin color. It has found a substance harmless and colorless, only those burning rays
By my experts' advice I had that substance embodied in my vanishing type of Youth Cream. I apply it before any ex-posure. After bathing I apply it again.
For water removes it. I have never had sunburn, windburn, tan or freckles since my experts taught me this.Now I am placing all my helps at every woman's call, and this one is among them.
Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream is supplied by all druggists, all toilet counters. The Vanishing Type Cream contains the substance which prevents sunburn. The cost is 60c per jar, and every jar carries my guarantee that it does what my experts claim. Also in 5c tubes. I promise you it will delight you.I shall gladly mail you a trial tube if you will send this coupon. Do that and see what it does.Trial Tube FreeEdna Wallace Hopper, 518

I want to try Vanishing Youth Cream.Traces Weaving Art to Neolithic WomanNeolithic woman's crude efforts to construct a roof for her primitive hut gave rise to the manufacture of silk stockings for modern girls. Prof. Harris Hawthorne Wilder of the department of zoology at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., has traced the history of weaving back to the Stone age shelter and even suggests that the apes started the practice which is responsible for Twentieth-century dress goods."The chimpanzees and orang-outangs of the present day," he says, "construct for themselves serviceable nests and twine above them the smaller branches, interlacing as well as their thick fingers and inferior brains will permit. But the primitive woman was far above this, and, in her twig-twining there soon grew beneath her supple fingers a definite system, by which, perhaps, one set of twigs interlocked in a fairly regular fashion with a set in the opposite direction. Next she made baskets, constructed like the hut, but made small and fastened to her back, they greatly facilitated her work of burden bearing."She then developed the new-found art still further and applied it to the construction of large mats, with which to cover the ground of the hut. In searching the forest for plant stems she discovered the characteristics of the fibers of flax. In some way, too, she noticed the peculiar virtue of sheep's wool, which was at first left upon the hide and employed like other furs. Twisting small tufts of wool between the thumb and finger draws them out readily into threads and this perfectly natural motion was probably often indulged in in idle moments before the idea was seized upon and definitely applied. A fairly good yarn can be made by the fingers alone, but the twisting can be more rapidly and easily accomplished by the use of something that can be made to rotate after the principle of a top. Thus came the spindle and spindle whorl."The simple stitches learned in basket making were undoubtedly used first in weaving with the more pliable materials. But soon the greater possibilities were taken advantage of and the fabrics and colored patterns that were achieved in the valleys of the Danube and Rhine before the horse was tamed or the use of metals learned, rivaled in beauty the costumes of modern peasantry in countries where primitive methods are still used."The native inhabitants of the two Americas often use in their weaving exactly the same process that the women of the Neolithic age employed.
Studies of the American Indians are one of the profitable ways of tracing the development of textile industries."Glass Hospital WallsGlass walls in hospitals are the latest outlet for potentially large quantities of that product. Glass has been used for walls and partitions in the children's wards of a new $4,000,- 000 hospital, Beth Israel, New York, so that patients with contagious or infectious diseases may be seen by their parents and relatives without danger of spreading the infection.It is often the case that education authorities will realize and advocate new economic opportunities some time in advance of their industrial application. Science and medicine have long since put the stamp of their approval on glass for its strength, safety and sanitation and visibility.
Packers and bottlers are now beginning to realize to a greater degree how existent these qualities are in the glass container.Charon the FerrymanIn classic mythology Charon was the son of Erebus and Nox. It was his duty to convey the shades of the buried dead across the rivers of the lower world. For this service he exacted an obolus; and, accordingly, a coin of this value was always placed in the dead person's mouth. To neglect this rite was to doom the unhappy shade to wander restlessly along the shores of Acheron, since Charon refused to ferry any one across who did not pay the fee. Charon is generally represented as an old man, with unkempt beard and filthy clothes.GRAND UNION

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 26, 1924.

It appears that there are some few "Bull Moosers" still in existence. Forty-eight of them have come forward with the announcement that they have been robbed of their property in the title "Progressive" and boldly accuse LaFollette of the theft. Which is a reminder that the present is not the first third party that has lived and died.

Demetrius Sigelakis, more adventurous than even Odysseus of deathless fame, has left his homeland of Greece on a voyage round the world in a 24-foot sailing boat, with no engine, no assistant sailor, and with only food and water for five months. He plans to "sail by night and sleep by day solitary on the sea." All of which suggests that he is a little off his head as well as "a sailor of experience."

It seems that the late Lord Northcliffe has confided to his former secretary—through a "famous medium"—that he now wears a grey flannel suit with a soft collar and soft shirt, which, like the usual news over the spiritual wireless is unimportant even if true. William James, for example, is alleged to have spoken from behind the veil merely in order to say that when he was in this world he was very fond of apples and some kinds of fish.

Official government records show that there are fewer paupers in the almshouses of the country than there have been before in the last twenty years and the number per 100,000 of the population is less than it ever has been. That is one proof that our people are in a more prosperous and contented condition now than they have ever been before. Why upset a government at Washington that has made it all possible?

It is understood that France is getting ready to refund her debt to the United States, and that a French commission will come to Washington before the end of the year to discuss the subject with the American Foreign Debt Commission. This development is the result of the careful tact and diplomacy of the Coolidge Administration. Not once has an insistent note been dispatched to France for a debt settlement. President Coolidge recognized that the French struggle to obtain reparations from Germany occupied the attention of that government to the exclusion of other matters, and that a debt agreement could not be expected until a European settlement had taken place. That settlement has found expression in the Dawes plan, and the refunding is to follow as a natural result. Thus we see that the Dawes plan may not only be the means of ending the strife in Europe but also of returning billions of dollars to American taxpayers that they had almost despaired of ever seeing again.

WOULD DEBAR MRS. FERGUSON.

The injunction suit to prevent Mrs. Ferguson from becoming Governor of Texas would seem to have little chance of a successful issue, although a literal interpretation of certain provisions in force in the State would not be in favor of her claims. The contention that she is not entitled to be Governor because her husband has been debarred from the office would appear to be altogether too trivial for serious consideration. Rather more impressive is the representation that the Governor of Texas is by virtue of the office commander-in-chief of the State militia, which, under existing law, must be made up of "able-bodied male citizens," and the assumption of the office would make Mrs. Ferguson a member of the militia, which she can not be because she is not a "male citizen." It is further claimed that women are explicitly forbidden by law to hold executive or judicial office, and that the right to the ballot conferred on women by the nineteenth amendment is not equivalent to full political equality. It has been generally understood to be, however, and it is safe to predict that that will be the final decision. All particular laws implying the contrary are likely to be either amended or not to be interpreted literally. For good or ill—according to the individual's view of the matter—the nineteenth amendment is generally understood to have reinterpreted such laws as by their literal wording imply that women are debarred from public office, and it can not be doubted that this view will ultimately prevail everywhere in the country. And in view of the nature of majority sentiment in America, although the courts must formally decide, it is safe to predict that Mrs. Ferguson will serve as Governor of Texas.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)
 ALL GOITRE NOT DUE TO WATER.

Many physicians and health officers are watching the experiment of putting iodine in the drinking water to prevent goitre.

The experiment is being carried out in some centers near the Great Lakes. Where the experiment has been tried on a certain number of school children and an equal number have not had the iodine, the development of goitre has been marked in those not getting the iodine.

Now this of great value of course, but many citizens in these places, feel that the iodine might upset the stomach or otherwise interfere with the functions of the body.

However, there is another point in the matter that is being overlooked by physicians and health officers, and that is that all cases of goitre are not the result of a lack of iodine in the water or food. The form of goitre found near the Great Lakes and other places is actually due to lack of iodine, and of course iodine is the proper treatment.

But as mentioned once before, you may have goitre due to infection from teeth, tonsils, intestine or other parts of the body. Severe physical and mental strain may bring on the condition.

You can readily see then that while iodine may be of help here, the lack of it is not really the cause. So if you or yours, are troubled with goitre and your home is not in a region where goitre is common, your physician may try iodine for only a short time, if he finds he is not getting results.

He will investigate the different parts as above, and try to locate the starting point of the trouble.

And as mentioned once before in his effort to build up your general health he may actually bring about a cure of this goitrous condition.

And the old physician's idea of clearing the intestine with castor oil or other familiar remedies, goes a long way in the treatment of these cases.

Because where the trouble is not due to lack of iodine, it may be many weeks before the exact cause is found. If during these weeks you are getting plenty of fresh air, a moderate amount of exercise, and are eating the proper food, you increase your resisting powers, and may actually keep ahead of the condition.

Meats, highly spiced foods, and too much alcohol may hinder other efforts to control the condition. So remember, that while iodine helps the condition in certain districts, it is of no avail where the condition is due to other causes.

UNITED LUTHERANS TO RAISE $3,000,000 FUND.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 New York, N. Y., Sept. 26.—A fund of $3,000,000 is to be raised by the United Lutheran Church in America for pensions and relief of its aged and retired ministers and their dependents. The executive board of the church has approved the proposed campaign and will recommend its authorization by the convention of the church at Chicago next month. It is intended that the collection of this endowment shall mark the tenth anniversary of the organization of the United Lutheran Church in 1928.

The campaign for contributions will begin a year in advance of that date and continue for six months afterward.

TURKEY RAISING ON DECLINE ON FARMS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Turkey raising in the United States has been on the decline during the last 20 years especially as an enterprise on the general farms of the country. Formerly large numbers were raised in New England, but in recent years there has been a decided decrease in this section as well as in other parts of the country. Several causes have been assigned by the United States Department of Agriculture for the decrease in the numbers now raised. The rearing of the young stock, in some respects at least, requires more detailed attention than is the case with most other classes of poultry and turkeys have given way to these other classes. The prevalence of blackhead has been a dominant factor and responsible for the discouragement of many raisers. The birds range widely and frequently trespass upon the property of neighbors, the vexation tending to discourage turkey raising. Finally, little attention has been given the most important problems of the industry by investigators.

On the other hand, there is, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, good opportunity for further development. Turkey raising is profitable, particularly where conditions are suitable and where proper methods of management are followed. The department has issued a new bulletin on turkey raising, Farmers' Bulletin 1409, which discusses the important points of the business and offers suggestions for making the industry a more profitable enterprise.

The bulletin sums up some of these fundamental factors as follows:

To be successful in turkey raising, one must give the most careful consideration to certain fundamental factors. The turkeys, especially the growing stock, must be kept under the best possible conditions. Free range seems indispensable, although there are a few who have made a success in raising turkeys in confinement. A more thorough test of this method is necessary, however, before it can be advocated. Certainly abundance of free range on clean soil is greatly to be preferred. Every effort should be made to keep the soil sweet and clean. This is particularly true of the ground on which the birds are fed and where they roost.

Another fundamental essential is to keep healthy and vigorous breeding stock in the best possible breeding condition. The breeding birds should get plenty of exercise and should not be fed too heavily on fattening rations. The great difficulty is to get stock that is free from blackhead, but one can at least select breeding stock based on constitutional vigor. By breeding from the most vigorous birds every year, a flock of healthy birds may be developed and maintained. Certainly much more care should be exercised in the selection of male breeders each year.

Both old and young turkeys should be protected from dampness. In sections of the country where dampness is prevalent or where rainstorms are frequent the birds should be provided with suitable protection.

It is very important not to feed the poults too heavily, especially the first few weeks. Keep them just a little hungry.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Coccidiosis Is Cause of Loss of Baby Chickens

One of the serious diseases which causes the loss of baby chicks, is an intestinal disease known as coccidiosis. This disease is contagious and many chicks die as soon as they get into the flock. The best means, of course, is to prevent infection by keeping a clean place for the chicks to feed and run. The brooder should be disinfected and all sick chicks separated from the well ones, feeding them mash and providing fresh drinking water. Destroy the dead chicks by burning.

The feeding floors, houses and brooders should be cleaned with lye and water, using one pound of lye to 40 gallons of water, and spray with a 3 per cent compound solution of cresol or some other reliable disinfectant. Medicines are of little value in the treatment of coccidiosis, but epsom salts may be added to the feed of the flock if the disease has been found. A pound of salts for each 300 to 400 chicks, four to six weeks old, can be mixed in a bran mash for one feeding. Repeat every third day until results have been secured. Poults require larger doses.

Capons Are Profitable

To the average farmer capons mean more actually than appears on the surface. Given free range, after caponizing time, and allowed to grow until conditioning time, there is no other form of chicken that can produce the same profit; corn is the principal diet for these meat producers, a cereal most available as poultry food. A hundred young cockerels can be transformed into money makers in about three hours—the resultant profit is threefold the broiler profit.

THE makers have put the ideas of the well dressed young men of this country into the new fall models. They really designed them. The easy fitting, informal styles are just the way they want them. The values are the way they want them too; a lot of fine all-wool quality for every dollar you spend

Fall style notes      The new colors

Two and three button single breasted coats are the favorites. They hang very easily; some hug the hips a trifle, others have a suggestion of the waist line. Trousers are full and drop straight to a wide cuff

There are many new shades that are extremely good; parrot blue is one of them; London lavender another; also lava gray and the new tones of brown. Deep blues too, with self patterns are smart.

Fortunes of the Republican Ticket

In the Hands of William M. Butler, Early Political Ally of President

CHARLES G. DAWES
 Governor of Massachusetts

PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE
 President of the United States

WILLIAM M. BUTLER
 Representative in Congress

Most important to everyone in the coming election is, of course, President Coolidge. With a phenomenal record for his administration of a little more than a year, during which he has saved literally billions of dollars to American taxpayers, the President is the outstanding figure of the day in the country—indeed, in the whole world.

His running mate on the ticket, Charles G. Dawes, is a world figure also. His record of achievements in the field of economics is known wherever newspapers are read. It was his suggested solution of the problems with which Europe has been coping unsuccessfully for five years that gave the first ray of light and hope for a business-wise settlement satisfactory to all concerned. The record of Dawes as the head of the Budget Bureau, which he organized and administered with notable results in huge savings of money to every American taxpayer, is widely known. He has a fine record of service overseas during the war and afterward. Only the older voters will remember that under the beloved McKinley, Charles G. Dawes was only slightly more than 30 years old—a position of great responsibility which he held with exceptional merit for four years.

President Coolidge has publicly said that he is too busy being President now to take time off to run his own campaign, and he has much of a hand in the selection of the man who will be his running mate.

It is a responsibility to the nation which he cannot shirk. But his campaign is in excellent hands—the hands of William M. Butler, old friend and early political ally of Calvin Coolidge when both men were deep in the state politics of Massachusetts.

Right now, and for several months past, Mr. Butler has been about as busy as one man could be. After successfully handling the pre-convention campaign for Mr. Coolidge, he was made chairman of the Republican National Committee, and has been at the helm in setting up and directing the complicated machinery for informing the men and women of the country of the record, the platform, the purposes and the beliefs of Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes.

DANUBE'S DELTA A WATERY MAZE

Its Many Mouths Present Innumerable Lairs for Piratically Inclined.

Washington, D. C.—Playing hide and seek with Rumanian gunboats in the sixteen mouths of the Danube river, a robber chieftain called "King of the Swamps," is reported to have brought shipping on the great river to a standstill.

"Standing well to the front among the rivers of the world the Danube with its many mouths, presents innumerable lairs for the piratically inclined," the National Geographic society says in a bulletin from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"After spreading in a great angle around the barrier of Dobruja, crosses the bulwark. The so-called blue Danube drops its load of mud and sand gathered from eight nations of Europe in a large delta at the western end of the Black sea. This delta takes the form of a huge, equilateral triangle fifty miles long on each side. The northern border is the Kilia branch, the south, the St. George branch, while on the east is the Black sea shore. The two main branches of the Danube are subdivided time and again in their never-ending impossible task of trying to make land and flow over it at the same time.

"Dissecting the triangle is the Sulina branch of the Danube which receives practically all of the shipping trade, since a deep channel to the upper river is maintained through it by the concerted action of the governments of Europe. The treaty of Paris of 1856 awarded the European commission of the Danube and ordered it to make the mouth of the great river open to navigation within two years. Evidence of how little the diplomats knew of the engineering problems involved in making a huge river serve mankind is shown by the fact that the commission not only worked two years but is still at work.

"Of all the varieties of earth surface, deltas rank high as the most useless to civilization. Mountains are admired for their inspiration, deserts hold rare beauty for those who seek it, but no one goes to a delta even to hunt ducks if he can help it. The Danube's delta is particularly unattractive since the peasants have not been able to adapt it to agriculture as sugar cane planters have large parts of the Mississippi delta. Some deltas such as those of the Amazon and the Yangtze consist of large islands surrounded by considerable water, but the Danube's waters run through a vast swamp which was almost a complete barrier to navigation before the European commission of the Danube took a hand.

"In country that is neither land nor water the reeds and willows take command and do not catch malaria. Deprived of timber the peasant fishermen put the reeds to many uses. Willows are used for basket making and the fish weirs. A plumed reed is cut for fuel and still another kind is woven into mats or used as thatch. Inhabitants of the Danube delta are mostly Rumanian fishermen. Those who are irritated at fishing restrictions in the United States can appreciate what a fisherman's paradise they live in by comparison. The Rumanian government considers fishing a government monopoly, and every commercial catch must be brought to a government customs house to be auctioned off.

"By the construction of levees and piers, the European commission of the Danube has opened a channel to Galatz, the Rumanian naval port, capable of receiving shipping up to 4,000 tons. The traffic in and out of the river amounts to more than 5,000,000 tons annually. By this route Rumania, fifth nation in petroleum production sends out much of her oil to the world. From the loose plains of Rumania, and southeast Rumania, continuations of the Black Earth belt of Russia, come tons of cereals and even American corn which is a staple Rumanian product.

"Before the Sulina channel was made products were brought to the sea in lighters and put aboard ships waiting in the open roadstead. Once a heavy storm arose and dashed 24 sailing vessels and many lighters on shore with the loss of 800 lives. Such a disaster is now impossible.

"The Danube Shorter Than Mississippi. The Danube rises in the Alps and flows 1,760 miles to reach the Black sea, breaking through the Carpathian mountains at the Iron gate, which is the Colaba cut of the Balkans. It is about 700 miles shorter than the Mississippi, and although it drains a great part of Europe outside of Russia, the Danube basin is only one-fourth of that of the Mississippi. The Nile, like the Danube, has many mouths, a recent map showing eleven. The Mississippi once divided into many sizeable streams to reach the Gulf, but engineers have succeeded in guiding most of its force into a single channel.

"It may be that Tarzan, the Danube pirate, is using the uninhabited Isle of Serpents off the mouth of the river for the headquarters of his fleet. This precipitous island about a mile in circumference figures in Greek history and is supposed to be the home of the spirit of Achilles. Great flocks of white-winged sea gulls frequent its rocky slopes together with the black snakes from which the island takes its name."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

ZOO ANIMALS' STORIES

"I haven't much to say for myself today," said the Gaviel, "except that I am a crocodile. That is, I am an important member of the Crocodile family. But my nose is very long and curious looking."

"Here in the zoo they use a fine word about my nose. They say it is elongated. Isn't that a fine word?"

The Tawny Frog-Mouth was sitting upon the perch in his house in the bird house.

"I am from New South Wales," he said. "That is many miles from here. I'm a rare bird. I'm sure you've never seen many like me. Doubtless you've never seen any like me. I'm not to be found flying around this country."

"They say our family is halfway between the families of Owls and Goatsuckers."

"That doesn't mean that we stop halfway between those two families if we see one either side of us. I don't know that we ever would find ourselves situated just in that way."

"But I mean that we're halfway like one of those families and halfway like the other."

"I do hope I'm clean. I certainly have a good mouth even if I don't say the right thing."

"My mouth does look something like a frog's mouth, doesn't it?"

"I am about as fat as a very fat pigeon. Well, I'm more than that and I'm larger than a pigeon, too; a good bit larger."

"At present I am very sleepy. My mouth is a pretty pale-yellow affair, isn't it? Not a dull-looking beak for me!"

"Nor for any of the members of our family."

"I wear a rather shabby black-feather suit with grayish streaks in it, and I don't look very dashing but I don't mind."

"I am the One-Horned Rhinoceros from India," said Miss Rhino. "There

"I Am a Furry Little Animal."

was great excitement before I came. There is a Two-Horned African Rhinoceros over yonder. But I am quite different."

"Yes, there was great excitement when they were expecting me."

"For days before I came the keeper said to all his friends:

"I expect a fine lady Rhinoceros in two days, or three days at the latest. She is coming by boat. You must surely come and see her."

"And they've been coming to see me and drawing pictures of me and asking all about me."

The Land Lizards were very good-sized lizards and their funny expressions were quite delightful. Their mouths were yellow and the skin was rough and had many little yellow horn-like decorations."

"We used to sleep under cactus trees," they said. "Each one of us had a bush to himself. But here we share several cactus or cacti trees which were brought along when we came."

They crawled over each other and did not seem to mind if one walked right over another's back to creep to the place he wanted to reach."

And another would look up and and that way with his head up and his front feet resting upon his neighbor's feet."

The Python spoke in his hissing fashion.

"We big snakes change our skins about six times a year. Pretty superior are we in the way we change our suits. We pull the old one off inside out as we get out of it and our new skins grow so nicely underneath."

"I," said the Slow Loris, "came from India. They said that the life in the zoo would not agree with me, but I have been here for four years and it has agreed with me perfectly. As you see, I am a furry little brown animal. I am not much larger than a very large rat. But I'm not a rat. I belong to the monkey family, though I'm one of the lowest forms of that family."

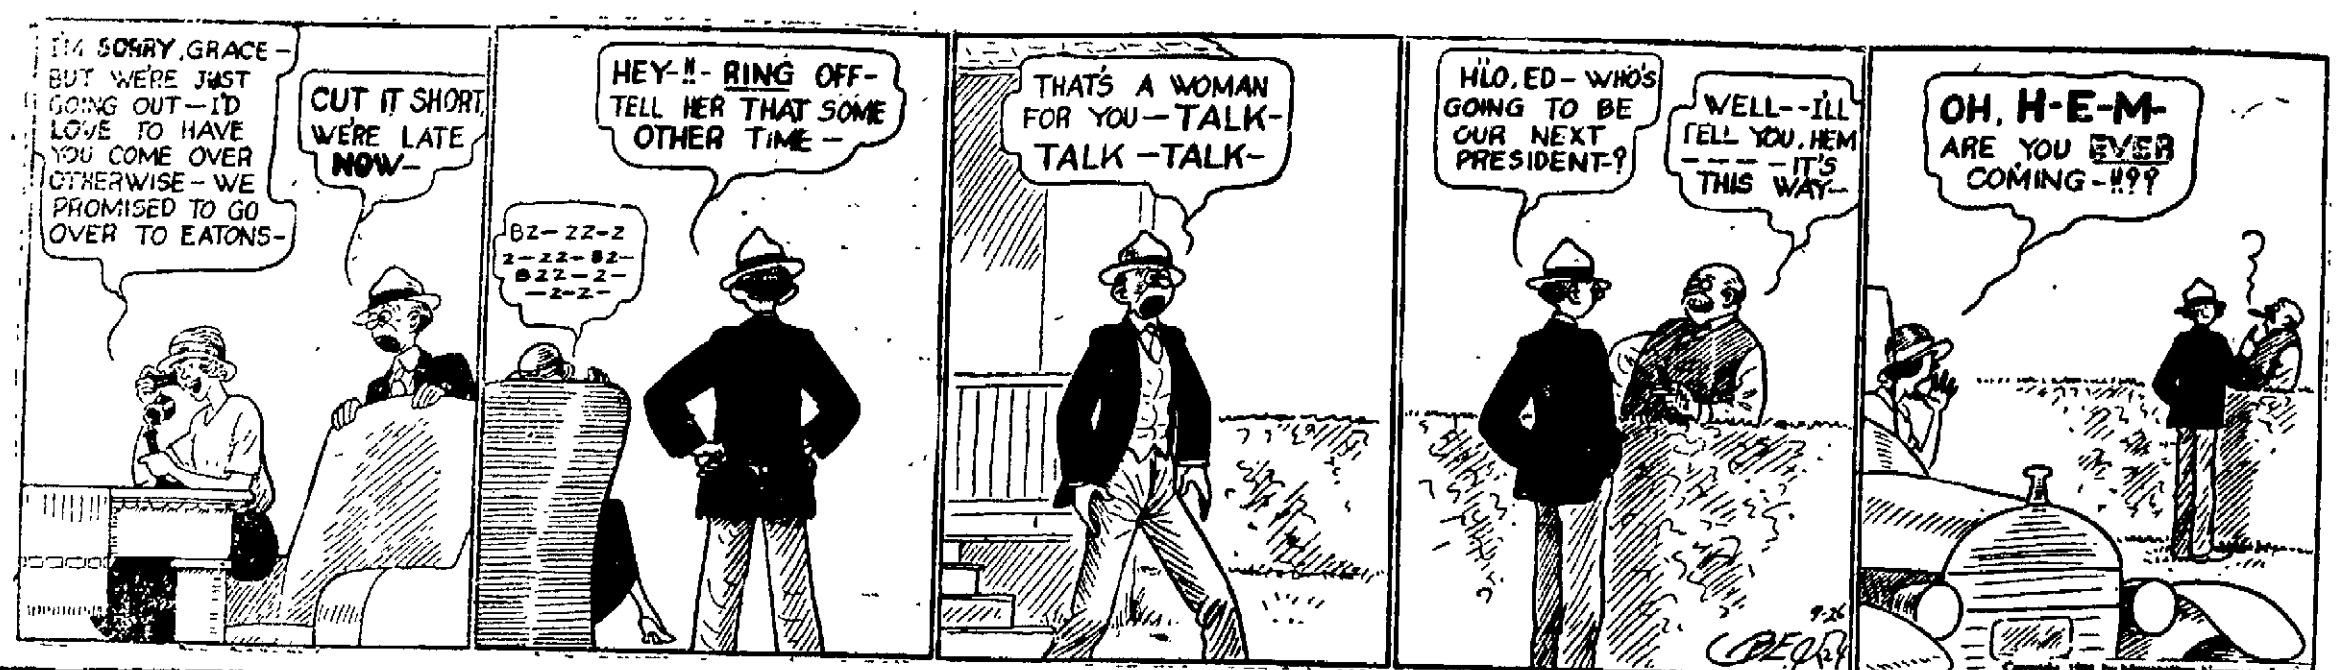

"Don't you admire the dark, dark brown streak down my back? And don't you think my huge eyes are very remarkable? Well, if you don't, I do not care, for I am not very friendly."

Some pretty little lizards with gray and red throats were in a sandy home next to the one where the Slow Loris lived, but he sat in a corner of his cage and looked at them and at the visitors with his huge, huge eyes, but he didn't make friends with any one."

The spirit of benevolence is a precious possession of mankind, but a more precious possession is the spirit which raises the strength of humanity so that benevolence itself becomes less of a necessity.—Mussolini.

SOMETHING FOR A CHANGE

It is economy to buy a fowl weighing four or five pounds, unless the weight is largely fat, as a smaller fowl has more bone in proportion to its edible portion.

Hawaiian Chicken.—Dice fowl and heat in liberal amount of curry sauce. Prepare sauce as follows: To one pint of oil add one-half cupful of condensed chicken broth, four tablespoons each of flour and melted butter, salt, pepper, a dash of cayenne, a teaspoonful of scraped onion and curry powder to taste. Serve in a Japanese bowl, and in a similar bowl serve hot cooked rice, cooked so that every grain is distinct. Pass at the same time hors d'oeuvre dish or large platter with little mounds of the following condiments to be sprinkled over the chicken and rice: Minced green and minced red pepper, coarsely chopped pimento, olives, desiccated coconut, coarsely-chopped peanuts, dried, uncrushed; crisp red tomato, thick cut in sauce.

Ham Pie With Vegetables.—Fill a buttered glass baking dish with alternate layers of seasoned mashed potato and minced ham—a little ham will be sufficient—leaving the top layer for the potato, with a space left for the other vegetables. Brown in a hot oven and, just before serving, place over the top a layer of hot buttered peas and small new onions, cooked separately and seasoned liberally with butter, salt and a dash of sugar.

Savory Luncheon Dish.—Mince the giblets which have been cooked with the fowl. Remove all the tough portions and combine with the whites of hard-cooked eggs, chopped, and a liberal amount of rich, highly seasoned tomato sauce, a chopped mushroom or two, fresh, canned or dry; if the latter, soak until soft; or minced sweet green peppers may be used. Arrange on rounds of well-buttered toast; surround with wreaths of hot, seasoned spaghetti, over which cheese is grated. Set in a hot oven to melt the cheese and just before serving, rice the hot egg yolk over the giblets and garnish with parsley.

A Bit of Store Gossip

Four years ago, McBride Drug Stores, Inc., was appointed the sole representatives for Kingston of the United Drug Co. of Boston. This agency placed within our grasp the purchasing power of the largest manufacturer of toilet goods, pharmaceuticals, hospital supplies, food products, rubber goods and candy in the world.

The United Drug Co. through its 688 stores, Liggett's 265 stores and the 10,000 Rexall stores have a wonderful selling organization, always on its toes to provide the public with the best drug store merchandise.

We have done our share in popularizing Rexall Remedies in this locality to the extent of standing fifth in New York state; first in cities of 50,000 in New York state and fourth in the United States in cities of 50,000, in amount of purchases.

That record was only obtained because the people of this city and vicinity had confidence in Rexall merchandise and believed the products bearing the United Drug Co. label stood for that which was the best obtainable.

The Puretest Line, advertised elsewhere, is made up of items in everyday use, in every household.

Boric Acid, Fuller's Earth, Stearate Zinc, each in a shaker top box; just a little more convenient for use. Loose packed herbs, garbled without stems or other foreign substances.

The list is a long one—Watch the daily ads.

Mr. Simpson, manager of 43 North Front street, says he has about 50 gallons of DuPont's Best Paint, nearly all in odd colors. If you can use any you can save $1.26 a gallon.

Brainy Children Come From Small Families

Do not pity the only child. He has more brains than children with many brothers and sisters, according to conclusions reached by Dr. Horrell Hart as a result of a study of 600 families in a typical Iowa city. The results have been reported to the Iowa child research station at Iowa City, Iowa. Children from large families are handicapped mentally, morally and socially, Doctor Hart declares.

In a representative sample of children from practically completed families in Davenport, Iowa, the ability of the children, as determined by mental tests, was found generally to run higher the fewer the number of surviving children. Children with no living brothers or sisters tend to have mental test quotients about 15 points higher than children with 11 living brothers and sisters, and the average mental test ability decreases fairly steadily as the size of the families increases.

"School progress, that is in excess of the amount to be expected from mental test ability, is at a maximum in families of four or five living children, and at a minimum in families of ten children or over," Doctor Hart says. "The difference between the progress in school of these two groups is such that the average child in the very large family loses about one-third of a year through conditions other than mental test ability associated with large families."

"The larger the family the greater the tendency is for the children to leave school at the earliest possible age."

"Of families with seven or more living children, 14 per cent are chronically dependent, as compared with 3 per cent among families with six children or less."

"As far as can be ascertained from teacher's ratings, children in large families are less energetic, less kind, less sincere and less honest than children from small families. This conclusion is fairly certain for energy, but not so decisive for the other characteristics."

"Contrary to general impression, children without brothers and sisters compare very favorably with children having brothers or sisters. Birth order, as far as it was studied in this inquiry, appears to have very little significance."—Kansas City Times.

Underthings Are Cotton or Linen

Women of Old-Time Elegance Demand All White; Lace Must Be Real.

Once the hold of a tradition is slackened and the charm of a sentiment broken, the order of things is often reversed and anything may be expected, especially in the polite customs of dress, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times.

When that time-honored mark of refinement, the white linen handkerchief, disappeared before the gay-colored kerchief of chiffon, voile and hand-painted gauze, it was foreseen that other violent extremes would come. And they are coming fast. Handkerchiefs are trifling things, yet the latest styles in them have served as an opening wedge for other ideas even more radical.

The first of these has to do with lingerie. Black underthings are made of the finest and most fragile materials for the most fastidious wearers. When they were first displayed, a little while ago, they were not taken seriously, though they bore the stamp of Paris and were presented by the most exclusive shops here.

Every one thought they were just samples, amusing and chic as models to be copied in white or delicate colors. Not at all! They were disclosed as the last murmur in fashion. Some women who go in for the unusual lead with such éclat that they succeed in establishing a mode have taken to the new dusky lingerie, and will doubtless cause the extraordinary soon to be accepted as the ordinary.

It is the history of every innovation, though in this instance the accepted standard of taste and propriety is more deeply implanted than most fashion ideas.

In the diaries kept by women of quality in the oldest American towns are records of the gifts brought by sailing vessels from France; the snowiest lingerie, convent-made things, hand-embroidered on linen of the finest quality, but always all white. The touch of color in embellishing underwear belonged to the peasant class; it was picturesque but was unsuitable for the wardrobe of a lady.

Eyefit work was the popular form of needlework, being both dainty and durable, the second quality not being a consideration in the up-to-date type of lingerie. Convent-made underwear was the mark of a lady in the earlier days, and her daughters were educated with the same ideal, one of modesty and sensibility.

In contrast to the flimsy garments that compose the sketchy attire now in vogue, those handmade linen and cotton underthings seem rather bourgeois and would not be considered by even the humblest among the majority. In the minority are the women who hold to the old standards of excellence and will have only hand work in their personal and household linens, feeling that nothing else is acceptable to a woman of refinement.

These may still find a large and luxurious assortment of exquisitely done lingerie things, both material and workmanship of finest quality and of most artistic design. But for a woman of old-time elegance they must be all white, of sheerest cotton or linen, never silk. Whatever of lace, much or little, is introduced must be real, never an imitation, or what is now known as novelty lace.

Simple but Gay Frock in Black and White Fabric

One could hardly imagine a more effective frock for a small girl than one in black and white wash fabric. The scalloped yoke and wide band are solid black, while the center section is white, which forms a background for little balls embroidered in bright colors, red, blue and yellow.

Artificial Flowers on Gowns for Evening Wear

Artificial flowers will be seen on most of the new gowns, especially the models designed for evening. Elaborate garnitures are among the most attractive novelties from Paris, which is the traditional atelier and market for artificial flowers. The latest fad is a tiny nosegay worn on the shoulder. Some women prefer natural flowers, a single orchid or gardenia, but the substitute, made as exquisitely as the fingers of the French women can make it, is popular. Any plume or cluster may be selected, but it must be worn on the shoulder.

'MERE MALE' IS NO JOKE IN SUMATRA

"Weaker Sex" Not Even Form of Speech on Island, Says Professor.

Chicago.—The Menangkabs, a people who held off the Dutch colonizers for 200 years, who abstain from intoxicating liquor, and whose women are more important than the men; and the Batak, who have just emerged from cannibalism and who adhere to the death cult, were described as living on the same island by Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago department of anthropology in a lecture on Sumatra. Living on an island a little smaller than California—Sumatra—the Menangkabs have a highly developed maternal form of government, Professor Cole said. Under such a system the husband has no rights over his children who inherit through their mothers. All weddings are manipulated by the bride or the bride's family and the dowry is only $2.40, all that the husband is considered worth.

Equal Suffrage. Men and women have equal suffrage rights. To such an extent is the government based on equality that for 200 years the Menangkabs refused to recognize the Dutch as overlords in the East Indies.

In another part of the island are the Batak who still retain vestiges of cannibalism. "Although cannibalism was declared extinct 15 years ago by the Dutch," Professor Cole stated, "there are still certain Batak who admit that a Chinaman tastes much better than a Batak. In one place a tablet has been erected to some missionaries who were eaten about a half century ago.

Worship Dead Chiefs. The Batak worship the dead chiefs by means of the death cult. They have built stone coffins with images carved upon them, and in which are placed the bodies of the most prominent chiefs. In smaller urns the skulls of the lesser lights are deposited. These are kept until the annual festivities when the bones are removed, washed and buried; this is a sign that the spirits have passed into the Batak heaven. Professor Cole said that he thought Sumatra, located south of Singapore, was an island of the future, and that it would some day rival Java, which is at present open to tourists and considered to have some of the most beautiful country in the world. According to Doctor Cole the scenery of Sumatra is even more beautiful than that of Java.

Sioux Indians May Read Bible History

Cincinnati.—An innovation in the printing of Indian history in the language of Indians, from the Teton Sioux tribe of the Pine Ridge reservation of South Dakota, has made its appearance in Cincinnati. The work, which is the fruit of much painstaking and self-denying work on the part of its author, Rev. Eugene Buechel, S. J., who is stationed at St. Francis, S. D., came from the presses here with the distinction of being the first time that a history of the Bible has been translated into an Indian language.

"Wovapi Wakan," is the name of the new book and this turned into the English language means "Bible History." Latin characters constitute the words, forming phonetically the language of the Teton Sioux. About 3,000 copies of the work have been printed and are ready for distribution among the Sioux.

Veteran Has Rare Coin

Crofton, Neb.—All who are contending in the coin contest in northeast Nebraska have been eliminated to date by Lloyd West of this place, who has an old English coin dating back to the time of Queen Elizabeth. Mr. West obtained the coin, dated 1569, during the World War when he served as a telephone lineman with the headquarters department of the Second Field Artillery brigade in the famous Second American division.

Snake Sees Sights

Detroit, Mich.—A snake, five feet long, crawled from behind a wall at the corner of Woodward and Kenilworth avenues and made its way calmly across the sidewalk. The few who saw it either bolted hurriedly or stayed at a safe distance to gaze in wonder. Finally, a student from Northern high school killed the snake, carrying it back to the school.

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

Co-Operative Sheep Growers Make Early Sales

At no time since the sheep growers began to co-operatively grade and market their wools have they experienced at this time of the year such active markets and strong values, according to officers of the New York Sheep Growers' association. With four years of very satisfactory experience to their credit, the year 1924 promises to be even more satisfactory from the point of monetary return to the members from the sale of wool. More than half of the entire pool was sold early in September and is now being shipped to the mills as rapidly as possible.

The 1924 pool will exceed that of 1923 by several thousand pounds. On Sept. 1 it amounted to over 470,000 pounds. The following sales have been made at what most sheep growers consider very satisfactory prices: Three-eighths combing, 54 cents; 3/4 clothing, 48 cents; 3/4 combing, 44 cents; low and common, 40 cents; rejects, 38 cents; tags, 18 cents. These prices were f.o.b. the warehouse at Syracuse.

During the months of April, May and June the usual spring slump in prices occurred, and many sheep growers were induced to sell to the local dealers at from 30 to 42 cents per pound. The dealers who were able to secure wools at these prices stand to make a handsome profit on the transaction. This is the usual case.

For many years the wools from New York state have been quoted on the Boston markets at from 2 to 4 cents below similar wools supposed to have been grown in Ohio. This condition came about through the selling by the New York state sheep growers of wools which were poorly conditioned and of unattractive appearance. Since the beginning of the operations of the Co-operative association, through the proper grading of the wools, they have invariably secured top quotations. The above sale prices were equal to Ohio quotations. It simply proves, according to the association, that when properly graded New York state grown wools are as good as any in the United States.

Farm Boys and Girls Enter National Contest

Several New York State County Farm Bureaus have entered the national essay contest of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The contest is open to all farm boys and girls in grades up to and including second year high school. The contest opens on Oct. 1 and closes on Nov. 10. The subject of the essay is to be a choice between "Why Dad Should Join the Farm Bureau" or "Why Dad Is a Farm Bureau Member." The American Farm Bureau Federation is awarding four prize trips to Chicago to the winner in each of the four national farm bureau regional districts. County bureaus are also offering cash prizes in some cases.

The points to be considered in judging the essays are facts on the subject, how the story is told, English, spelling and punctuation, general appearance and neatness. The county essay will be judged by a committee appointed by the Farm Bureau executive board, the county superintendent of schools and the county agent.

The first prize winning essay from each county is to be submitted to the national organization to compete with the prize winning essays from other counties. The essays submitted to the national office will be grouped geographically and the first prize winner will be selected from each of the four national Farm Bureau regional districts.

Robertson Resigns Manager of Maple Producers' Association

The Maple Producers' Co-operative association, Inc., which during the past three years has had some trying experiences, has recently moved its offices from 307 S. Franklin street to their warehouse at the corner of Vine street and Burnett avenue, Syracuse. Mr. F. E. Robertson, who has been acting manager since January, 1923, has severed his connection with the association. H. P. Nicholson, who has been bookkeeper and acting treasurer, will look after the operations for the immediate future.

The association now owns its equipment free and clear and its officers have been relieved from the personal liabilities which at one time they had incurred in the interest of the association. But in view of the unusually heavy expense incurred in its first year of organization, and the high costs of operating its plant, it has been unable to make returns to the producers in satisfactory amount.

The association handled in 1923 about 147,000 gallons of syrup; in 1923 about 21,000 gallons of syrup, and in 1924 about 30,000 gallons of syrup.

A clump of elderberry bushes in the corner of the garden is a real decoration, besides making it easier to have an elderberry pie.

are subject to constipation. It is a common ailment of play, they neglect to eat and drink properly. More than forty other diseases are caused by constipation. Don't begin at once to cleanse their system of the dangerous poisons.

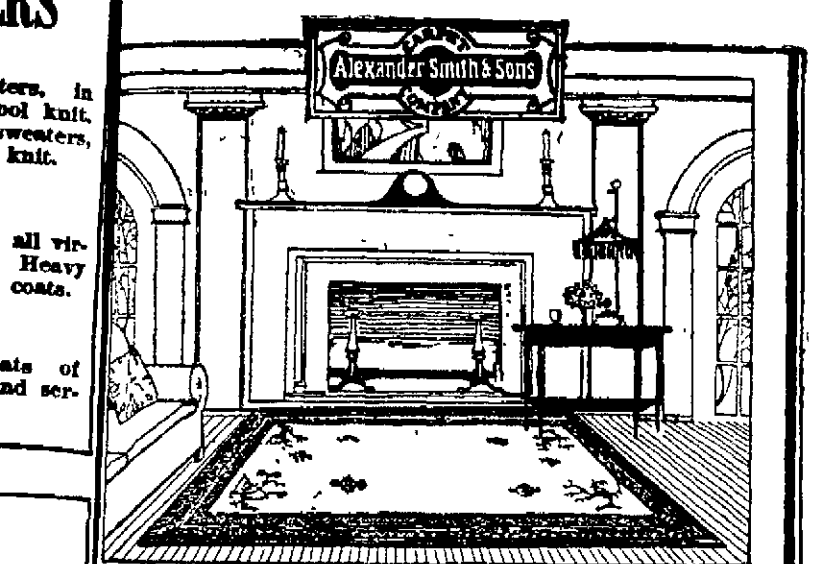

Kellogg's Bran sweeps the intestine and purifies it. It drives out poisons which undermine your health. It makes the bowels regular and naturally.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, is guaranteed to bring results if regularly, or your grocer will give you money. It is guaranteed to be ALL bran! Nothing but bran can be 100 per cent effective. Kellogg's Bran is recommended everywhere—they know that it brings results.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. They will like its wonderful, nut-like flavor—so different from common bran which are most unpalatable.

As a cereal, with milk or cream, they will enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in delicious muffins, bread, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

But start them eating Kellogg's Bran to-day. Start every member of your family eating it. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumpled, is made in Battle Creek and is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Ask for it at your restaurant. It is sold by all grocers.

FIND COPY OF PATENT WASHINGTON GRANTED

Fourth License in History of Republic Was for New Method of Making Type.

Washington.—An authentic copy of the fourth patent issued by the United States government, the only facsimile of a patent granted in the early days of the American republic, has just been found by Commissioner of Patents Thomas E. Robertson. It was issued in 1791 and is in a good state of preservation. There are no copies of the first, second or third patents issued by the government.

When this document was issued there was no patent office. All inventions were approved by the President, countersigned by the secretary of state and the attorney general and delivered to the applicant personally by the secretary of state. The fourth patent, therefore, bears the signatures of George Washington, President; Thomas Jefferson, secretary of state, and Edmund Randolph, attorney general.

Francis Bailey of Philadelphia applied for and received this patent on January 31, 1791. It was on a new method of punches and matrices for making printing types. The patent reads as follows:

"To all to whom these presents shall come, Greetings:

"Whereas, Francis Bailey of the city of Philadelphia, in the state of Pennsylvania, printer, hath invented certain methods, not before known or used, for forming punches, by which to impress on the matrices for printing type, whether such types be for setters or devices, as well as to impress on any metal or other substance capable of receiving and retaining impressions various marks which are difficult to be counterfeited, and the said invention appears to be useful and important: these are, therefore, in pursuance of the act entitled 'An act to promote the progress of useful arts,' to grant to the said Francis Bailey, his heirs, administrators and assigns, for the term of fourteen years, the sole and exclusive right and liberty of using and vending to others the said improvement, according to the true intent and meaning of the act aforesaid."

The grant was issued at the national capital, then located in Philadelphia.

Famed Malamute Dog Seems Destined to Go

Anchorage, Alaska.—The malamute dog, for many years the famed steed of the north, apparently is destined to go.

With the coming of railroads, dog teams were driven farther into the interior. And now the prevalence of reindeer herds and the growth of the market garden and the town-lot garden have caused restrictions to be drawn around the malamute until he is coming to be classed a nuisance in the more settled parts of northern Alaska.

The malamute had his genesis in the wolves and wild dogs of the North. All fowls and quadrupeds were his common prey. But when, in more modern days, a malamute began pulling down reindeer and the live stock of farmers, he was treated as a wolf and hunted down.

Owing to the light demand for dogs, it is difficult to procure pure bred specimens south of the Yukon, and the one-time aristocrat of the Arctic is becoming mixed with the blood of so many mongrels that he has almost lost his identity.

Dog Has Bank Account; Makes Own Deposits

Chicago.—Rim Elbert, an aristocratic bulldog, earns his own cash and deposits it in the bank as a fund against the infirmities of age. So far as known, he is the only dog with a bank account in his own name.

Rim is owned by Mrs. Orel Elbert of Sheridan road and he earns his money by going about the premises and putting things in their proper places. He gets a dime for going to bed promptly, and if he whines or barks his pay is cut off. He carries baskets to and from the market and gets an extra quarter for watching the automobile. If he leaps down from the seat and plays with another dog he loses the quarter.

Once a week he takes his collection of quarters and dimes to the bank, stands in front of the receiving teller's window on his hind legs, gets his book back and trots home. His balance is $39 with no withdrawals.

Boy Salvages $180 in Discarded Refrigerator

New York.—Emulating Old Mother Hubbard, Alexander Simmonetti, ten years old, saw an old icebox replying in a vacant lot and thought he would search it for a hope for Rags, his animated and interested companion. But, unlike Mother Hubbard, he not only found one "bone," but 180 of them rolled up in a little green bundle and tied with a rubber band. He ran "around" to the Simpson street station with his find as fast as his little legs would carry him and turned the bank roll over to Lieutenant Evans, who is keeping it for the owner.

Teach Clergy to Speak

Receives 110 Stitches and Puffs Calmly On

Baltimore, Md.—Daniel W. Downey, a fireman on the steamship New Briton, lay upon an operating table at Johns Hopkins hospital and calmly smoked cigarettes while surgeons sewed 110 stitches in his face, arm, abdomen and leg. He had refused an anesthetic.

His wounds were caused by John Black, an officer on the vessel, who assaulted him with a knife, according to the police.

Downey's fortitude and courage recalled to hospital attendants similar cases they had experienced among American troops in France during the World war.

Later in the day he was so far recovered as to be able to appear in police court against Black, who was held.

TREASURE SEEKERS SUFFER HARDSHIPS

Back After 18 Months in the South Seas.

San Francisco.—With 2,400 feet of camera film depicting parts of their adventure and the ship in which they sailed as the only tangible assets brought back from an 18-month cruise of the South seas in search of treasure, 20 hungry men came through the Golden Gate recently in their bark, the Narwhal.

The old vessel, built 40 years ago, was just able to reach San Francisco. Battered and buffeted by the storms encountered during her last cruise, she will bring but little when sold, members of the party said.

Three times since leaving here with her crew of adventurers, the vessel has been reported overdue at various ports, and once she has been posted as missing. From time to time word was received here of mutiny on the vessel because of the hardships undergone, but the men declared such tales had been unfounded. Eight of the original party left the craft at various ports, but their places were filled by other men picked up during the cruise.

The crew of the vessel embraced only two professional sailors—the captain and mate. The others included a motion picture camera operator, retired United States army and navy officers, Russian nobleman, a British aviator and others.

Much of the time during the cruise the party was on short rations, and suffered otherwise, they said. The Narwhal carried no cargo when she arrived.

Part at Altar as Bride Refuses to Leave N. Y.

New York.—Love is love, but Norfolk is Norfolk, and much as pretty Catherine Chapman doted on Alfred Anderson, in the lumber business in Norfolk, Va., she couldn't bring herself to the point of forsaking Manhattan, borough of her birth, to live in the metropolis of the peanut industry.

So at St. Rose of Lima's church just as the priest had donned his vestments and was about to tie the knot, Catherine handed her Alfred an ultimatum. It was to the effect that she would marry him if he would live in New York, but under no circumstances would she live in Norfolk.

To say Alfred was in a quandary is to say nothing at all adequate to the situation. He dearly loved pretty Kitty Chapman, but the lumber business is also the lumber business, and it takes time to build up a lumber business.

No Alfred cogitated, then shook his head sadly, got out the time table of trains for Norfolk and telephoned for a pullman on the 12:34.

Boy Chained to Sink to Act as Watchdog

New York.—Amadeo Nicolazzi, nine years old, was freed after neighbors allege, his father had kept him chained to the kitchen sink for 77 hours to act as a watchdog and spy on his mother. The boy had been able to move in a radius of only six feet since Monday morning, members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children who rescued him said.

Joseph Nicolazzi, thirty-nine years old, the father, was held in $1,500 bail for a hearing later.

Divorced at Ninety-Nine

Seymour, Ind.—A man should be capable of picking out the right kind of a woman for a wife by the time he reaches the age of one hundred and one years, according to a decision in which Frank Fialar of Seymour was granted a divorce. Fialar, who is ninety-nine years old, was ordered not to remarry for at least two years. The wife whom he divorced on his ninety-ninth birthday anniversary is half his age and became his bride in 1917.

Display Dead Cat

Danville, Va.—An embalmed cat, resting in a specially made plush casket lined with satin and silk, was on display in the window of a local drug store.

The cat had been for years the pet of the establishment. To gratify a whim of the owner, a casket with metal handles was made for the animal.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius.

Judge—You are charged with being a deserter from your wife. Is this true?

Prisoner—No, judge, not a deserter; just a refugee.

He—Good idea, darling. You carry the suitcase.

CONSERVATION NOTES.

Sportsmen Prepare for Future by Planting Forests—Other Activities.

Dr. Emmeline Moore, investigator in fish culture for the Conservation Commission has been in attendance at the American Fisheries Society held in Quebec. As vice president of Division Aquatic Biology and Physics she reported on the researches in these fields bearing directly on the problem of fish conservation. Dr. Moore also presented a paper on the work of the Conservation Commission relating to studies of hatchery diseases describing her more recent researches on the effects of parasitism in brood fish.

The Chenango County Fish and Game Association has ordered 3,000 young white pine trees from the Conservation Commission to add to its growing forest and the Jefferson County Fish and Game Protective Association has ordered 20,000 white pine, Scotch pine, red pine and Norway spruce. Sportsmen's Associations throughout the state recognize the fact that more forests mean better hunting and fishing and, proceeding on that knowledge, are planting trees.

Twenty seven orders aggregating 151,000 young trees for planting on farm pastures and unused farm fields this fall have already been booked by the Conservation Commission and the fall planting season is just beginning.

The Conservation Commission is making an educational motion picture on white pine blister rust and is control. The film will show various phases of the disease of the white pine, how the disease is controlled and results obtained where control measures have been applied.

Home Lighting Contest Now On

Eleven National Prizes and 23 Local Prizes for Which Kingston Public and Parochial Pupils May Try.

The International Home Lighting Contest, as announced in The Freeman, opened Monday, September 22. The public schools and the parochial schools were supplied with announcements and registration cards for this contest. These were distributed to students of grades 5, 6, 7 and 8 of the grammar schools and to the entire student body of Kingston High School.

This contest as announced, is open to all students of public, private or parochial schools who will be 10 years old or older on December 31, 1924. There are eleven national prizes offered ranging from a $15,000 Electric Home to a $300 scholarship in American or Canadian College or University of accepted standard. (Equivalent to $75 a year for 4 years). Along with these prizes, the local Lighting Educational Committee has offered 32 prizes for Kingston, 16 prizes for high school pupils (8 for boys and 8 for girls), and 16 prizes for grade school pupils (8 for boys and 8 for girls). These local prizes range from $15 in gold to bronze medals.

All students eligible and desirous of entering this contest should get their registration cards in, preferably not later than Friday of this week. When the registration cards are in, contestants will receive their Home Lighting Primers. It will be necessary to follow the work faithfully as outlined in the Primer. It is also of utmost importance that the contestant get from the daily papers the lessons which are therein printed. Tuesday evening's Freeman contained the first lesson. There are nine lessons in all and they will be run each day for nine days. Cut these out and save them. They contain the working knowledge for this course of study.

Watch the papers for the question and answer column. You will find a great deal of help in that way. If you are doubtful on any point or desire any information, telephone 1400 or call at the Educational Committee Headquarters, 611 Broadway, where any possible help will be gladly given.

Everybody has an equal chance to win the prizes, both national and local. Go into it with the spirit to win, and you will find it worth while. Representatives of the Lighting Educational Committee have visited the grade schools and have given short talks outlining the contest generally, and the plan of study. Contestants must have their essays and primers in to their teachers not later than October 17, 1924. There is ample time to do the lessons and get your material ready if you begin now.

BAND CONCERT SUNDAY.

Free Concert at Auditorium Precedes Salvation Army Campaign.

The National Staff Band of the Salvation Army that plays in Kingston on Sunday is one of the outstanding musical combinations of the country. Recently while on a tour of Europe they competed in a large musical festival in London and the press report of the festival was as follows, quoting from the Times:

"The visiting bands at the Congress have been giving stirring exhibitions of their skill in the Temple Gardens and the Americans drew the largest crowds and produced the best music."

Recently in a concert at Elmira, the Advertiser stated that "The concert of the Staff Band was one of the finest musical treats ever presented in this city. The program and its rendering was par excellence."

The band will give a great free musical concert at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be no financial effort of any kind made at this concert. Captain Ralph Miller, of the local work, is highly pleased at being fortunate enough to secure this treat for Kingston and wants everyone to hear the program.

On Monday, September 29, the ward captains will start a house to house canvass of the city for the funds needed to provide shelter for the needy during the cold nights of the coming winter. The appeal will last two weeks and wind up with a tag day.

Mayor Morris Block will introduce the chairman of the concert, who will be Colonel Stephen Marshall, the provincial commander of the states of New York and New Jersey.

Zion Church Supper.

This evening at 6 o'clock the special chicken supper advertised by Club No. 3 of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church, will be served. A nominal sum will be charged. The menu will consist of chicken fricasee, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, sugar corn, tomatoes, hot rolls, butter, coffee, apple pie, ice cream and cake extra. The plan of the club is to deal the high cost of living a heavy blow. It's a business man's dinner. A special program will be rendered at 8:30 p. m., with a prominent speaker.

Zion Missionary Day.

The Missionary Society of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church will have charge of the program on Sunday. The general church has set aside this day, the fourth Sunday in September, as missionary day. The pastor will speak at the morning service on "The Response to the Vision." At the evening services there will also be a speaker included in the program. This evening Norman West will have charge of the praise service.

HAMBURG ASPIRES TO BECOME AIR CENTER

Hamburg is making efforts to become a keypoint in the system of northern and central European aerial transportation that connects Germany, Holland, England, Denmark, Sweden, Russia and Austria. A new airfield has recently been constructed at Fuhlsbüttel, Hamburg, which is owned by the state and is leased to a private company. The landing field will be prepared to handle a great amount of traffic.

Experiments and tests are being made for a proposed system of communication between planes and the fields. The telegraph will be used chiefly for the dissemination of meteorological intelligence and for starting and landing reports, while the telephone will be used for direct communication with planes. A modern beacon, visible at a distance of 80 kilometers, has been erected to serve as a spotter in night flying.

A Tactful Man

Sir Robert Baden-Powell can always be relied upon to tell a story worth retelling. At the recent dinner of the Federation of Rambling Clubs he related an amusing incident in which he and his wife were concerned while camping in a wood belonging to one of the newly rich.

Lady Baden-Powell asked permission to put up a tent in the wood. After some hesitation, sanction was forthcoming.

"But you must bring the general to see me," insisted the landowner.

Her ladyship pointed out the general, who was busy unharnessing the horse.

"That him?" exclaimed the landowner. "Good heavens! I thought he was tall, slim and—well, hand some!"

New Needle Pointer

A device has been invented that enables one to repoint fiber needles without the tiresome task of removing them from the tone arm after once having been used on a record. A Chicago manufacturer has now perfected a small metal cutting device that cuts the needle without removing it. It is run under the needle and the lever pressed down by the first finger. This operates a cutting knife. Back of the cutting knife a small receptacle catches the discarded part of the needle.

Egyptian Cotton Inferior

Lancashire (England) spinners who have gone over from American to Egyptian cotton are reported to have found the change quite unsatisfactory. They have not had any experience in handling Egyptian cotton, and it is said that they have produced poor yarns which cannot sell at a price commensurate with the cost of raw material. Spinners also complain of an excess of water in the Egyptian cotton that is being received.

Should Say She Was

Doris, two years old, was enjoying an ice cream cone, given her by auntie, and had joyously "told to" without expressing thanks verbally. Seeing that she had, for the moment, forgotten manners, auntie teasingly said:

"Thank you!"
Doris looked up brightly and said: "I'm welcome."

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

The first meeting of the Washington National Monument Society was held in the city of Washington 91 years ago today, when the society was organized as a volunteer association to work for the erection in the capital of a monument, national in character, to the founder and first president of the republic. As early as 1783 the first suggestion of such a monument had been made, when the Continental Congress passed a resolution recommending the erection of a statue of Washington. The scheme was revived after Washington's death, but congress failed to provide for the erection of the work and it was not until this monument society was organized in 1833 that anything was accomplished. Chief Justice John Marshall was elected first president of the society, being succeeded on his death by James Madison. $97,000 in dollar contributions was collected by the society, and the cornerstone of the monument was laid in 1848. Then the senate refused to concur in a $200,000 appropriation and all work stopped until 1876, when congress appropriated one million dollars. The monument, dedicated in 1855, is one of the finest memorials of its kind in the world and cost $1,500,000.

MARY MAGDALEN.

The first of the woman saints of the Christian calendar, in point of time, was St. Mary Magdalen, "a woman who was a sinner." To her first, after His mother, Jesus gave the certainty of His resurrection and to her first He made himself known. One of the legends connected with her is that after the crucifixion of Jesus, she, in company with the Virgin and Mary Salome, to escape persecution, set sail on the Mediterranean in a leaky boat, and after a miraculous deliverance, landed on the south of Gaul. Mary Magdalen then took refuge in Provence, and the cave in which she is said to have lived for thirty years is still to be seen, as is the chapel on the mountainside, where, according to legend, she was caught up daily, like St. Paul, "to visions and revelations of the Lord."

FIRST GERMAN-AMERICAN.

The first German was Francis Daniel Pastorius, who was born in Windsheim, Germany, 273 years ago today. Pastorius was the son of a judge, and was educated at Strasbourg, Basle, Jena, Ratisbon and Nuremberg, receiving the degree of Doctor of Laws from the latter university in 1656. After much travel in Europe he joined a religious sect called the Pietists, who to escape the persecution to which they were subjected in Germany, bought from William Penn a tract of land near the new city of Philadelphia. Pastorius, the brilliant young lawyer, was made the company's agent in the New World, and in 1783, accompanied by a small number of German friends, he emigrated to America, and upon his arrival in Pennsylvania he laid out the community of Germantown, which flourished under this wise and beneficent direction.

Institute Gives Teachers Many Topics to Study

World Court, Carefulness and Narcotics Presented in Entertaining Way by Speakers of Prominence to County Teachers.

The opening address of the afternoon session of the Ulster County Teachers' Institute at the high school Thursday afternoon was delivered by Dr. Sullivan, assistant commissioner of education of the state of New York, whose subject was "Narrowmindedness of the Teacher."

Dr. Sullivan included under this head the teacher who was narrow-minded or prejudiced in teaching history or in presentation of modern economics. It is the function of the teacher to carefully and fairly present both sides of any question under consideration rather than to attempt to bias the minds of pupils in favor of either side. The teacher should be absolutely an academic person who must yet be even freer from moral turpitude than those of other professions or businesses, for a teacher must be above all suspicion. The best remedy for narrow-mindedness is the careful study of and living by the Golden Rule.

Local Societies Pass Resolutions.
Following Dr. Sullivan's address, Superintendent Gillette called attention to the fact that the law now calls for the teaching of physiology in schools to include the evil effects of narcotics. He said that when he recalled the absolute hostility of legislatures to this a number of years ago, he marvelled that the law had been passed and congratulated the W. C. T. U. upon having secured its passage. Of late the county superintendents had been receiving sets of resolutions by local societies that would seem to indicate there was a possible laxity in compliance with this law by teachers.

W. C. T. U. Secretary Talks.
The superintendents had decided to ask a representative of the W. C. T. U. to address the institute, and he introduced Miss Helen G. H. Estelle, state secretary of the society. Her subject was "A Study in Small Fractions."

"After careful scientific observation and investigation we realize today that alcohol is a narcotic drug," said Miss Estelle, "and the W. C. T. U. has considered it well to put this germ of thought over into the minds of the boys and girls of the land." Many thought that when the prohibition law was passed in January, 1920, they could sit back and fold their arms as far as that matter was concerned. But it is one thing to write the laws of the land on our statute books and quite another thing to write in on the hearts of our people. Miss Estelle considered it quite as vitally necessary to teach the necessity of total abstinence from all alcoholic poison today as formerly and counted Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's statements that prohibition is not the will of the people and cannot be enforced as a mighty challenge, especially to the teaching force. The speaker then told how the eighteenth amendment was passed absolutely according to constitutional requirement, but said the law was certainly made by men. If it had been made by women they would have used the word "alcohol" plainly, thus doing away with all the discussion and contention over the definition of "intoxicating beverages." However, she thought that if "one-half of one per cent alcoholic content" was considered intoxicating in license times it surely ought to be under prohibition rulings. Today boys and girls should be taught according to the law, that any intoxicating liquor, even beer and light wines are poison. Miss Estelle related benefits of prohibition shown by the numbers of pupils who now come to schools decently clad and fed, who before were the victims of the intemperance of parents or other members of their families. Those same children now have a chance to have a clean and sound body and mind.

Drove Young to Drugs.
But alcohol is not the only narcotic to be warned against, according to Miss Estelle. There is morphine and all of its children. When in Buffalo lately, Miss Estelle learned that the boys and girls of one of the schools were holding what they called "Snow Parties," in other words they were having where the habit-producing drug heroin was being taken. Today the greatest numbers of drug addicts are young people aged from 20 to 25 years. The old argument that prohibition would drive the drunkards, especially those of mature age to drugs had proven false for it is the young people of today who are using the drugs.

Miss Estelle told of the tobacco habit, especially for boys and girls of school age, and cited statistics claimed to show the low percentages and lack of concentrative powers of boys who are habitual or frequent smokers.

"What's the Use?"
Richard E. Coon of Poughkeepsie, the next speaker, announced as his subject, "What's the Use?"

Mr. Coon said he used to think he had reached almost the limit of the "get by" idea, but it evidently had not yet reached its crest. As he and Mrs. Coon were hurriedly leaving a hotel recently, he handed the clerk a $20 bill to pay an $11 account and in an indifferent manner the clerk handed him $4. He said to the clerk, "I thought I gave you a $20 bill but evidently I must have given you a $15 bill to receive four dollars in change."

It was another case of "What's the Use?" Recently a woman on the street where Mr. Coon lives had hired decorators to redecorate two rooms, using kalsomine in place of paper. Two workmen arrived, and instead of tearing off the paper, they washed the ceiling and then went down cellar and smoked cigarettes. She telephoned to the manager who promptly arrived and Mrs. Joe Kietelick spent one day last week with Mr. and Mrs. Fuller.

ELECTRIC DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM TO BE SOLD

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, Sept. 25.—A petition has been presented to the Public Service Commission by Charles H. Stokes of Kerhonkson, N. Y., for authorization to sell his electric distribution system in the towns of Wawarsing and Rochester, Ulster county to the Kingston Gas & Electric Company. The Kingston Company joins in the petition. Mr. Stokes says in his petition that he desires to retire from the business, which he has operated for several years, and states his belief that the operation of the properties by the Kingston company will result in economies of present operation and future development, and will be for the benefit of the public service.

BOYS' SUITS

had a heated session with the two men who had plainly thought "What's the Use?"

Mr. Coon said he was sorry for the teaching profession of this first quarter of the Twentieth Century if they were allowing their pupils to think that the idea of "getting away with anything" would get them anywhere. Every boy or girl who grows up has to live with his or her habits and thoughts for years to come. He warned teachers against being suspicious of their pupils. The teacher who is afraid that her pupils will cheat is quite likely to find them living up to her expectation. If a boy or girl cheats, make them understand that out in the world cheating can't be sold. The only successful thing is getting the habit of being honest. Help the children to check up their own mistakes and so make them understand that teachers are their helpers not their prison guards. Character is the only thing that lives.

No class of people have a finer opportunity to influence the incoming citizens than the teachers but they must be careful of the quality of the seed sown in the minds and hearts of boys and girls. Money is not the biggest thing. Mr. Coon closed with warning the teachers never to underestimate their own influence, and always to remember to use it for the building up and making better the lives of those whom they influence.

Talk on World Court.

Prof. David Hutchinson of the faculty of the New York State College for Teachers at Albany, who was the last speaker at the morning session Thursday, spoke on "The United States and the World Court, and divided his subject in four groups: The origin of the court; its relation to the League of Nations; its organization and jurisdiction; and the objections to it.

The origin of a world court was first proposed by the United States in 1899 at the Hague Conference. In 1907 the matter again came up for discussion by the different nations but could not be settled because no agreement could be reached as to the methods of selecting the judges. But it was recommended there should be such a court of arbitral judgment when a method of electing judges could be decided upon. The small nations wanted to have an equal voice with the large nations which were unwilling to be controlled by the small nations. The problem almost wrecked the convention at the Hague. From 1907 to 1914 the United States tried to find some satisfactory solution of the problem. Then when the League of Nations came into existence, the duty of solving the problem was put up to it in 1920. Twelve noted jurists of different countries were chosen to undertake the task. The United States did not seek representation, but was asked to send Elihu Root to the conference. Mr. Root was chosen because in 1907 President Roosevelt put up the question of a world court of international jurisdiction to Joseph H. Choate and he chose Elihu Root, secretary of state, to present the matter. His was the first original plan adopted. Following the Hague conference of 1920 word came from twelve jurists, that to Mr. Root be longed all the credit of the solution of the matter. His solution was that the judges should be voted for by the Assembly and Council of the League of Nations as separate bodies. So the world court is a purely American idea, advocated by this country for over a quarter of a century.

This Permanent Court of International Justice is entirely separate from the League of Nations, being entirely a court of law and evidence and in no way controlled by the League of Nations. While the Assembly and Council of the League will elect the Court, the men comprising that Court will be independent of the League as are American judges of the Supreme Court, of the President and Congress.

Organization. Only States or Nations may be parties to the Court and their so being is not obligatory. The jurisdiction of the Court consists in judging disputes or cases between states or nations, such to be of a proper sort; that is, not political or other similar questions. The Court may give advisory opinions relative to cases to the League of Nations just as our states often give advisory opinions to their governors. The Court is to have power to decide all questions submitted to it by the states or nations, and so far 21 such nations have signed what is known as the "Optional Clause," agreeing to abide by the decision of the court on any question of treaty or convention which would be a breach of international obligation. The procedure of this Court would be that of an Anglo-Saxon Court, almost identical with our New York state law relative to the trial of cases. The languages of the Court are to be French and English, though other languages might be used if advisable. There is to be a written and oral statement of cases. The written statement will be a document presenting the case and there will be practically the same procedure as in civil practice. The oral procedure will consist of the hearing of witnesses, counsels, experts, or agents of states, and judgments will be decided by a majority vote of the judges. If the defendant in the case is not present, the case will go by default, as in the law of the State of New York. There is no appeal from a decision of the Court, but there is a possibility of revision if new evidence is presented that was not withheld due to the ignorance or negligence of the one presenting the case, provided it is presented within six months after ten years. Each party presenting cases to the World Court is supposed to pay its own costs.

Chief among the objections to the world court as given by Mr. Hutchinson was that the court will have no sanction; no compulsive force behind it. The United States supreme court has no sanction behind it, yet the speaker said that since 1855, that court of claims has had the respect of the land. The power to enforce the rulings of the supreme court of the United States or of a state, lies in the good will of the nation or state back of the court and in this country this plan has worked splendidly. It was admitted that at first some of the states resisted the rulings of the supreme court of the nation, but all soon acquired the habit of obeying the court and today no one would think of refusing to do so. If 48 sovereign states of the world could do this for so many years, why not the nations of the world? It is for the United States to show the way.

The second objection was that the world court would destroy or supersede the power of the United States supreme court. Mr. Hutchinson said this was impossible as the world court is an entirely different organization, international in character, while the supreme court of the United States is created by the constitution of the United States and has a different jurisdiction. Should there ever be a conflict between the rulings of a treaty and the constitution of the United States, the United States constitution never gives way to a treaty.

The last objection is that in the permanent court of international justice, England will have 6 votes to America's 1. In fact, with Ireland a member of the League of Nations, England would have 7 votes to America's 1. The speaker said that assumption was false. He said that no political boss ever has delivered all of the votes of his constituents, and assuming Great Britain to be acting as such a political boss it would not be Anglo-Saxon to think that she could deliver all the votes, including Ireland, Canada, South Africa, Australia, etc. In any event there are 54 votes in the assembly of the league and Mr. Hutchinson did not consider even a bloc of 7 serious. But the judges are to be elected by the assembly and the council acting as separate bodies and Great Britain has but one vote in the council and the United States has but one vote in the council. Secretary of State Hughes considered that fact the strongest protection to the United States of any plan yet proposed.

MR. BEAR'S BEE PIES

MR. BEAR had a dreadful time trying to catch the one who stole his berry pies. For Mr. Bear was a good cook and especially fond of berry pie, and when the berry season came he always feasted.

One day he made five big pies and placed them in the window to cool, but he was very fond of his noonday nap, and when he awoke he found all of his berry pies were gone.

Mr. Bear was a good-natured fellow, but he was angry now. He scratched his head and thought hard. "I wonder if it is those Reddy Fox boys," he said, "or maybe the Possum twins, or it might be the Coon boys."

"Anyway, whoever it is, I am going to stop them from carrying off my

"What is the Matter, Sonnies?" inquired Mr. Bear.

berry pies. That is the third batch of pies I have lost this season."

"Then Mr. Bear sat down to his dinner of bread and milk instead of the fine berry pies he had intended to have, and thought about what he should do to catch the rogue or rogues who took his pies.

The next morning he was up bright and early gathering berries, and at noon time in his pantry window there stood five nice brown pies.

Mr. Bear did not intend to go to sleep, but he did doze off, and he was awakened by a howl that made him jump. He ran to the pantry; the pies were gone.

Now Mr. Bear did not know who made the howls, but he knew he would find out before the day was over, and he knew, too, what the culprits were about, for he had put plenty and more than plenty of red pepper in those berry pies, so that whoever tasted one would not wish to taste another.

That afternoon Mr. Bear took a stroll through the woods. He called at Mr. Possum's house, but all was well with every one there. Then he called at the home of Mr. Coon, but the Coon boys were feeling well, too.

But when he came to the home of Reddy Fox, there on the doorstep sat the two little Reddy Foxes with their mouths tied up. "What is the matter, sonnies?" inquired Mr. Bear, looking very innocent indeed, "got the toothache?"

The little Fox boys did not answer, but their mother came to the door just then and said: "They got some bees in their mouths. I think they haven't been able to talk since they went out this morning to look for something sweet to eat, but I think they got a mouthful of bees."

"That's too bad," said Mr. Bear. "I guess you boys would not care for my bee pies, then. I think they are nice, so hot and warming to the mouth when you eat them. I was going to invite you over to have some tomorrow. I shall bake some. If you think you would care to try them, come around."

Mrs. Reddy Fox said she never heard of bee pie, but she was certain the boys would not be able to eat anything for several days.

The little foxes did not answer. They just rolled their eyes at each other and looked after Mr. Bear as he trudged down the path towards his home.

"There, I guess that will fix them," said Mr. Bear to himself. "I don't think I shall lose any more of my berry pies this season, anyhow."

And he didn't, for as soon as the little Reddy Foxes got well they told everybody in the woods that Mr. Bear made pies out of bees and he didn't take the stings out of them, either.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

SCRAPING OFF DISEASE

MISS FANNY BERGEN, in her collection of superstitions current in this country, cites the case of a man who cured himself of fever and ague by tying himself to an ash tree and then crawling out and leaving the disease tied there. Kindred methods of cure are rather common in Europe—especially, it would appear, in rural England—and are not infrequently within this country. Crawling through a cleft tree, through the low arch of a bent twig stuck in the ground or between upright posts set close together, are some of the methods of scraping off disease practiced in Europe; and in Britain there are ancient stones with a narrow opening between, through which men crawl today in the hope of leaving their afflictions behind, just as they crawled through those same stones for the same purpose in the days when the Druid priests cut the mistletoe with their golden sickles from the neighboring oak.

The superstition can be traced far back and is a survival of primitive man's sympathetic magic of the contagious variety. Mr. Caveman reasoned something like this: If he crawled through a narrow opening he would scrape his clothing off—if he had any on. If he did not he would scrape his skin off—a part of it, at least. His disease had become a part of him, like his clothes or his skin, and a like process would scrape that off. Then disease was caused by evil spirit, and from time immemorial an approved way of getting rid of evil spirits was to lure them into a tight place and leave them there.

The man's cure was three-ply. By crawling out of the rope he transferred to it the "substance of the disease." Then there was the magic of the "obstructive knot," which kept the fever tied, and lastly he had appealed for relief to the sacred ash. Any ordinary case of fever and ague ought to yield to so powerful a treatment.

EULALIE

THOUGH Eulalie, or Eulalia as it is sometimes preferred, has a Spanish origin as well as pronunciation, the name has come to be used as purely American. Perhaps no other name has a more beautiful or pathetic history. It means "fair speech," and comes from the Greek term for that phrase.

The first Eulalia known to history was a child of twelve, who possessed such extreme of Spanish piety that she escaped from her parents' guardianship and entered Merida, proclaiming herself a Christian and enduring martyrdom in the persecution of Diocletian. The great Christian poet Prudentius has written of the child's beautiful faith and cruel suffering, and spread her fame throughout Europe. The Russians call her Eulaliya and the Serbians, Eulalija or Lelica.

Another virgin martyr called Eulalie died at Barcelona. Her relics spread into Guine and Languedoc, and named the villages of St. Aulazie and Ste. Aulatre. Both Eulalia and Eulalie are used interchangeably in France and Spain. Eulalia is frequent in England, appearing in very early times in church registries in Devon and Cornwall.

Eulalie's talismanic gem is the agate. If worn by her as an amulet, it will protect her from danger, and give her courage and energy. It promises her a pleasant disposition and the gift of persuasion by which she will always attain her heart's desire. Tuesday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

To Confer on Motor Age Limit

Statute Prohibiting the Issuing of Chauffeur's or Operator's Licenses To Persons Under 18, Said To Burden Rural Residents.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 26.—S. L. Strivings, Master of the New York State Grange, is expected to confer with Charles A. Harnett, motor vehicle commissioner, next week, regarding the provision of the new motor vehicle law which provides that no person less than eighteen years old may receive an operator's license.

Mr. Strivings has reported to Commissioner Harnett that residents of rural sections of the state are complaining that the age limit provision, if enforced, will make it necessary for many families living in rural sections to keep their boys and girls from attending school in larger communities adjacent to their homes.

In a letter sent today to Mr. Strivings, Commissioner Mark Graves, of the State Tax Commission, speaking for Commissioner Harnett, pointed out that the new law is specific in its direction of an age limit of eighteen years. Commissioner Graves advised Mr. Strivings to take the matter up at once with Assemblyman Lewis G. Stapley, head of the legislative committee which will make recommendations to the next legislature for changes in the present law, and make known to Assemblyman Stapley the sentiment of the people of the rural sections.

Commissioner Graves's letter to Mr. Strivings, reviewing in a comprehensive way the situation regarding the age limit provision, was as follows:

"My dear Mr. Strivings: Your letter addressed to Mr. Harnett is received, and at his suggestion I am venturing to write you about it. His absence from the city prevented him from doing so.

At the outset, let me thank you on behalf of Commissioner Harnett for your assurance of loyalty and the promise of aid in working out your program. Public opinion is the greatest law enforcing agency in the world, and it means much to Commissioner Harnett to have public sentiment and public opinion behind him in this very important work in which he is engaged.

In the second paragraph of your letter, you call attention to the conditions which are developing all over the state with respect to children under eighteen years of age who desire or need to drive cars, either in the pursuit of their parents' vocations or in transporting themselves and others to and from school. Unfortunately, Commissioner Harnett is without authority in that matter. The legislature has said in subdivision 1 of section 289 of the motor vehicle law "no operator's or chauffeur's license shall be issued to any person under eighteen years of age." No discretion is vested in the Commissioner. He can but obey the mandate of the statute and refuse to issue licenses to those under eighteen years of age. Even if he ignored this provision and issued licenses to those under eighteen, they would nevertheless be subject to arrest by any police officer in the state, and of course the police officers are not under the control of the Commissioner.

In the course of your letter you express doubt if the Commissioner realizes what a burden the strict enforcement of this statute will place upon the children of farmers. Quite likely the situation is not as clear to us as it is to you, but nevertheless we have given much thought to it. The Stapley Committee, of which Assemblyman Lewis J. Stapley of Genesee, New York, is chairman, is continuing its study of the motor vehicle problem, and that is one feature to which it is giving attention.

I was privileged to appear before that committee in Rochester on August 26th, at its first meeting, and among other things I discussed the eighteen year age limitation and urged the committee to secure data from insurance and surety companies and to obtain the experiences of other states. I had in mind, and so told the committee, that the State of Massachusetts, than which no other state has accomplished more in regulating the motor vehicle, has an age limit of sixteen years. In a conversation once Mr. Goodwin, Motor Vehicle Administrator of that state, told me in substance that he had no more trouble with sixteen and seventeen year old drivers than he had with eighteen and nineteen year old operators. I then expressed the following thoughts—I quote verbatim from what I said:

"If you find that eighteen is the low limit, as far as you should go, then I believe you might amend the statute in some way giving the motor vehicle commissioner power to, by rule and regulation, provide for the issuance of restricted or limited licenses, as he may deem expedient and wise, and that restriction might be to not more than so many miles an hour, or to driving only outside of cities or incorporated villages. It might be in the pursuit of certain vocations, or during certain hours of the day, but give him power to make his regulations as to what seems wise, and don't get it rigidly into the statute so he cannot change it when he finds it is an unwise provision. I was raised on a farm, and I know when I was fourteen or fifteen years old, I commenced to fill a man's shoes, and I know many another farmer boy is. But I doubt if you want to limit it to farm business, because in some of the villages the grocer's son or the butcher's son is driving a delivery car, and he has just as much right to drive around in his father's business as the farmer's boy."

I am mentioning this at length so that you may understand that we are not and have not been lacking in appreciation of the inconvenience to which many will be put by this new law.

I may also add that Mr. Stapley and many, if not all, the members of this committee look upon these suggestions in a sympathetic way provided they can be satisfied that human lives will not be jeopardized by a reduction of the age limit or some modification thereof.

Commissioner Harnett will be in his Albany office on Wednesday and Thursday, October 1st and 2nd, and will be pleased to confer with you at that time. However, the greater need is that you and other representatives of your organization get in touch with Mr. Stapley and arrange to appear before his Committee, and, if I may suggest it, work with them in trying to secure some solution of this difficulty. The most that Commissioner Harnett and I can do is to recommend to the Stapley Committee what we think should be done and you will see from the foregoing we did that a month ago."

Fear Freighter And Crew Lost

Freighter Clifton With Crew of 28 Men, Missing Since Sunday, is Believed Foundered in Lake Huron Gale.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 Detroit, Mich., Sept. 26.—After a night of anxiety and waiting for a report on the freighter Clifton, missing since Sunday on Lake Huron, lakemen admitted today that the vessel and her crew of 28 men were undoubtedly lost.

"I cannot see the slightest hope for her," said E. J. Crowell, president and general manager of the Birmingham Sand and Gravel Company. The Clifton was to have arrived at the docks of his company here with 3,500 tons of stone Monday night.

Agents from his company searched Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay for a trace of the Clifton late yesterday and last night, but found none. It had been thought the Clifton might have taken refuge behind an island protected from the storm. Crowell sat for eight hours at the telephone yesterday calling up every port between Detroit and Surgeon Bay, Wisconsin, in an effort to get tidings of the vessel.

The Clifton was reported to have passed Mackinaw Sunday morning safely but is believed to have foundered in the severe gale on Lake Huron the following night.

A. P. McDonough of New York, was one of the crew.

BROWN FOR FOOTWEAR AND FOR FURS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

It is a far simpler matter to list furs that are not fashionable than those that are! One has only the most casual acquaintance with many of the novelty furs being worn, but beaver is an old friend, and one which is warmly greeted on its re-entry into smart society.

Beaver trimmed models are getting to be quite a usual occurrence, nutria serving in some instances, with few in the know as to the substitution. It must be remembered that it is a season of brown furs, and of furs on everything from the plainest sports to the most elaborate evening clothes.

On knitted jackets, which have their place in sports wear, one finds collars and cuffs made of loops of wool, which, of course, conjure up memories of hook rugs. These are very smart, but are second in interest, of course, to fur-collared jackets. Kit fox is one of the furs used for sports, while badger and the entire wildcat family continue to enjoy social approval.

New Jersey May Send Woman to Congress.

MRS. MARY T. NORTON

Mrs. Mary T. Norton won the Democratic nomination in the Twelfth Congressional District of New Jersey in the primaries. Her district is normally Democratic, so she is likely to be the first woman from the East to sit in Congress. Her home is in Jersey City, N. J.

DINNER WITH THE "IRON CHANCELLOR"

English Divine Tells of Repast in 1885.

At twelve o'clock we had a large and long meal, including smoked goose and other delights. (Friedrichsruh, Germany, 1885.) My father sat next to Princess Bismarck, who was very pleasant, and after luncheon, when the cigars were handed round, he asked her whether she minded his smoking, on which Bismarck roared out, "Why, she smokes herself!"

This was in 1885, when it was very unusual for a lady, to smoke, so a vigorous effort was made by his daughter to induce him to behave properly; but he took no notice of her repeated and reproachful cries of "Father! she doesn't! Father!" and shouted, "She does, she does, in her bedroom she does!"

It turned out that the poor lady suffered from asthma, and smoked medicated cigarettes to relieve it. "You will understand," Bismarck remarked, "that in everything but name I am king of Germany, but I have not all the privileges of a king and I cannot simply say I am not disposed to receive so-and-so." It appeared, however, that even the most pressing visitors sometimes failed to get in, for Bismarck told us the following story: "A man called and sent in word that he wanted to see me, and I said that he couldn't. He then sent in to say that he must see me, and I said that he shouldn't; and he sent in a third time to say that if he did not see me he should go and hang himself on one of the trees, and I told the servant to find a rope and lend it to him!"

The frankness or apparent frankness of his talk was surprising, but it was a cynical saying of his that it was just as cheap to tell the truth as to tell lies, and quite as effective, for the truth is never believed in diplomatically. Another saying of his which impressed me, though I do not remember the context, was "In matters of national policy I never put down my right foot till I know where I am going to put my left; that is a lesson which I learned in my youth in the Pomeranian marshes."

At dinner we each had, I think, seven wine glasses and at least one tumbler, and I drank nothing but water. My host noticed and deplored this, and though he courteously tolerated it he could not refrain from a slight outburst against what he called the temperance craze in England, and against the fanatical attacks on moderate drinking.

It is recorded of him that at one time he did his moderate drinking in large glasses of champagne and port mixed, and that one Molke gave him a sort of punch made of champagne, hot tea and sherry.

Iguana Fearsome Beast

A monster Iguana has recently been added to the attractions at the London (England) zoological gardens. When the weather is warm and fine this strange beast is allowed out into the open. With its spiny breast, which turns blue with excitement, the creature looks so terrifying that spectators are not likely to ignore the notice warning them that "The animal is very dangerous. Do not touch." This is fortunate, for, apart from inflicting a severe wound with its claws or muscular tail, the Iguana has such massive jaws, set with needle-like teeth, that it could almost bite through the hand. Wearing a collar, the Iguana is tethered to a stake, where it can get the sun.

Despite its fresh-air treatment, the Iguana has lost its appetite, so it is being forcibly fed by the attendants.

Of Icelandic Origin

The word "tee" which is so commonly used on the golf links and curling fields is derived from an old Icelandic word, which originally meant "to point out." In time it came to stand for a starting point, a place which was specially pointed out to competitors.

Pen Picture of Sultan by No Means Flattering

In the Menorah Journal, Marvin Lowenthal, in writing of Herzl's Diaries, a three-volume work which recently appeared in German, describes the founder of Zionism's entertaining experiences with Abdul Hamid during the last days of his notable court.

"The sultan stood before me exactly as I had pictured him, small, thin, with a great hooked-nose, full dyed beard, a weak, trembling voice. He wore his imposing Selamlik uniform, diamond-studded decorations, gloves. He gave me his hand, and we seated ourselves. I sank deep and comfortable in the cushions. He sat on a divan, his sword between his knees. Ibrahim sat and stood. When the sultan spoke to Ibrahim I watched my lord carefully, and he retaliated when I spoke to the interpreter in French.

"The sultan impressed me as a weak, cowardly, but thoroughly good-natured man. I believe him to be neither clever nor cruel, but an unhappy prisoner in whose name a thriving, infamous scoundrelly camarilla commits the vilest wrongs. Abdul Hamid Khan II is a generic term for the shabby-bag gang of rascals that ever rendered a land unsafe and unhappy. . . . I see him before me now, the sultan of this declining robber empire. Small, manly, with his badly dyed beard combed apparently once a week for the Selamlik, the hooked-nose of a Punctinello, the long, yellow teeth with a big gap in the upper set, the fez pulled low over his obviously bald head, his big ears serving, as I say to my friends, as a pants protector, to keep the fez from slipping down over his trousers, the weak hands in their all too big gloves and the colored cuffs that do not match his costume, the beating voice, restraint in every word and fear in every glance. And this Rules?"

Strange Bedfellows

The big house on the hill was filled with company. Phil, one of the younger sons of the large family, was sharing his bed with his father because of the crowded conditions. About the middle of the night the father was awakened by Phil, who was looking under the bed and in the covers. He was almost on the verge of tears.

"I caught a pretty snake down along the crack today and put him under my pillow when I came to bed, but now he's gone," the child sobbed.—Indianapolis News.

Increasing Uses for Paper

New uses for paper are being constantly discovered, making further inroads upon the already dwindling supply in this country. Durable and flexible garments are now being manufactured from paper made from the mulberry tree, and cooking bags, browned, bottles and grain sacks, all made of paper, have been prearranged to come these.

Famous "Devil's" Bible

One of the most remarkable books in the world, called "the Devil's Bible," and also the "giant of books," has been brought out of its hiding place in the royal library of Stockholm, following a request for a photograph copy from the city of Prague, where it was captured at the Swedish conquest in 1648. It was written 800 years ago, and legend says that it was completed during a single night by a monk who was doomed to die. He had to have assistance from the devil, however, and in gratitude made a full-page portrait of him, horns, cloven hoof and all, which has ever since remained in the Bible, according to the Detroit News.

The book is probably the largest Bible in the world, the pages being a yard high by a foot and a half wide. It is written on 800 parchment sheets, for which, according to tradition, 100 donkey hides were required. The lettering is beautifully illuminated in gold and bright colors.

Training Women Doctors

The Jubilee of the London (Royal Free Hospital) School of Medicine for Women, part of the University of London, will be celebrated in October, says London Tit-Bits.

At the present time there are nearly 400 women students who pass on for their hospital training to the Royal Free hospital, the governors of which institution made possible from the first the training necessary for fully qualified women doctors.

This is the only center of medical training exclusively for women in the British empire, and today its medical students include women from eighteen countries.

A thousand graduates of the London School of Medicine for Women are now practicing in various parts of the world.

Friendship Strained

An amateur in Professor Kay's play-acting class at the summer session at Indiana university did not have a dress that she thought suitable for the part of the extravagant wife she was to play. Going to one of the girls in the house where she roomed, she asked, "May I borrow your tan and red dress? I want to wear it in the play tonight."

The other girl replied, "Why, that is my very best dress. I hate to lend it. Haven't I anything else you would care to borrow?"

"No, that is exactly what I want. I am supposed to look sloppy," the new actress admitted before she realized what she was saying.—Indianapolis News.

Copying Nature

Cover a billiard table in a bright red cloth instead of the customary soft green and every billiard ball would be deserted in half an hour. Billiard tables from the beginning were covered with green for the same reason that nature covers her open stretches usually with green, because it is soothing to the eye.

Diagram for Portable Three Tube Multi-Audi-Plex Circuit, Using UV 199 Tubes, Operated From Dry Batteries.

By LEON BISHOP

Here is a diagram for a portable three-tube multi-audi-plex circuit, using UV 199 tubes, operated entirely from dry batteries.

Procure a 180 degree type variocoupler. Wind the stator, S, with 40 turns of No 22 double cotton covered wire. Starting from the ground side of the stator, tap every four turns for five taps, utilizing 20 turns of wire connected to the switch, SW, which is in turn connected to the aerial circuit.

The rotor circuit, R, may have anywhere from fifteen to forty-five turns of wire, depending upon the amount of regeneration developed in the circuit. If regeneration is too strong, the number of turns may be reduced until violent regeneration is subdued.

This is not a single-circuit, but is really a two-circuit tuner of very simple adjustment. Radiation from this circuit is almost impossible.

Across the stator, S, is connected a .0005 mf. variable condenser, preferably the 28-plate type. Care should be exercised that the rotary plates are connected to the ground, as this will eliminate body capacity effects.

The grid condenser, C1, is of the mica type, .00025 mf. The grid leak, GL, should be anywhere from two to five megohms, the higher the better. The rheostats, R and R, are 30 ohms, one rheostat controlling the detector tube, while the other rheostat controls the two amplifier tubes.

The "A" battery consists of three cells of dry battery. Oftentimes a three cell "C" battery, now common on the market, may be used where compactness is not essential. Three blocks of "B" battery will be sufficient for loud speaker reception on this circuit. It would not be advisable to get the exceptionally small size "B" battery, but preferably the middle size, as there is some length of life to this battery.

The by-pass condenser, C2, is .002 mf., and must be connected as shown.

The audio frequency transformers, AF and AF, should be of the higher ratio type. Care should be exercised that the outer winding of the secondary, unless marked G on the transformer, should be connected to the grid of the tube. The other side of the secondary should be connected to the negative side of the "A" battery and not the negative side of the tube filament. Remember, there is a big difference between negative tube filament and negative "A" battery, for you are using a 90-ohm rheostat.

On a portable set two jacks are sufficient. The first, or phone jack, is located across the primary of the second AF transformer. By this method of connection it is possible to listen in on the phones while the loud speaker is in operation without crippling the loud speaker output. The second jack is exclusively for loud speaker reception.

Forty-five volts is suggested for the first detector tube and 67 volts for the two amplifier tubes.

The operation of the set is really simple, there being practically only two real tuning adjustments. These are the variable condenser, C, and the rotor, R. The switch, SW, is used practically for selectivity only. The condenser dial readings may be recorded and will be found to be consistent from time to time in recording the same stations.

In a panel layout the variable condenser should be at the left and the variocoupler at the right. The switch contacts should be above the dials in the center of the panel. It is suggested that just below the dials a little push-pull switch be introduced into the "A" battery circuit to turn the tubes on and off. The two rheostats can go at the right of the panel, with the two jacks directly under them.

The grid leak, GL, and condenser, C1, should be located as near the detector tube as possible. The lead should not be over one inch long.

This circuit is typical of all the multi-audi-plex family, only it is designed for dry battery tubes for portable use during the summer months. It can quite readily be seen that the parts suggested in this circuit can be put into a small space if the descriptive panel layout is followed. This circuit will give excellent loud speaker reception, as well as real DX, which is characteristic for the multi-audi-plex class.—New York Sun.

Lighting Contest Queries Answered

Ques.—How may I become eligible to the international contest and prizes?

Ans.—The essays which are awarded first prizes in each local district will be entered in the national contest for the $15,000. Home and the college scholarships.

Ques.—Does the neighbor's home I report on have to be my next door neighbor?

Ans.—No. It may be any home in your vicinity which is lighted by electricity. If you prefer you may report on the home of one of your relatives.

Ques.—Is it necessary to write 600 words in the essay?

Ans.—There is no minimum figure established but 600 words is the maximum. As a suggestion we would say we believe it will be necessary to use very nearly the maximum if you are to properly describe how you would relight your home.

Ques.—In writing my essay may I write on both sides of the paper?

Ans.—The instructions say, "Write in ink on one side of the paper only."

Ques.—How do I determine the figure to be put in the column marked "Total Words" under the heading "Investigation and Report?"

Ans.—In all standard lamps the watts consumed by same are indicated either by a label containing the information being pasted on the neck of the lamp or by the information being sanded in the glass on the globular part.

Seraglio's Location Fixed

The ancient palace of the sultans of Turkey at Constantinople is called the Seraglio, the Kansas City Times informs us. It is beautifully situated on the site of ancient Byzantium, and incloses within its walls an area of nine square miles, irregularly covered with baths, mosques, kiosks, gardens and cypress groves. The chief building is the harem, erected as a residence for the wives of the sultan. The outer court of the seraglio is free to all, and is entered by the sublime porte. The new palace of the sultan of Turkey is on the Eosphorus, opposite Scutari.

Turned Quarry Into Lake

A heavy blast fired in the Pextang stone quarries, one of the largest workings in central Pennsylvania, turned the quarry into a lake overnight. The charge blew a hole in the bottom of the rock and struck a spring, which in 24 hours made a lake approximately 400 feet long, 100 feet in width and from five to seventy feet in depth. R. W. Stone, assistant state geologist, expressed the opinion that the lagoon is permanent.

Honesty

A man who wanted to know what the percentage of crooks is in the world sent a hundred one-dollar bills to as many persons, together with a letter explaining that they had been overcharged to that extent. Nobody had been overcharged, of course, because there had been no business relationship between the sender of the letters and their recipients. Sixty-three of the hundred returned the money—thirty-two women and thirty-one men. Of five letters sent to bar-keepers, only one returned the cash. Thirty-seven of the one hundred persons silently pleaded guilty to being dishonest.—Hearst International Magazine.

Contact Cleaner for Use on Your Sockets

By JOHN A. DENGLER

If your receiving set is to work at maximum efficiency, it is absolutely necessary that the tube socket contacts be clean. A dirty or corroded contact will often spoil what would otherwise be excellent reception. As a rule, these contacts are cleaned with a piece of sandpaper or emery cloth held in place on the end of a stick. This method, however, is clumsy, and a good job is rarely done. If the little instrument herewith described is used for this purpose, it will be a simple matter to do this work, and clean contacts will always be assured. This contact cleaner can be used on both standard and UV-100 or C-299 sockets. It is made of a piece of round wood 1 3/4 inches in diameter and 4 1/2 inches long. One end of this piece of wood, for a length of one inch, is cut down to three-quarters of an inch in diameter. The other end is also slightly cut down for a length of about one-half inch. Two round pieces of emery cloth of a diameter one-half inch larger than the ends of the contact cleaner are now forced over the ends by means of an inch wide. It might be advisable to cut slits about one-quarter of an inch deep on the edges of the emery cloth disks so that when forced in place a smooth surface will be obtained. To use this instrument it is only necessary to remove the tube, insert one end of the contact cleaner in the socket and, while applying pressure, twist it from side to side. It will be found that the contacts can be cleaned in this manner very easily. The time and labor expended on this contact cleaner will be amply repaid by the knowledge that the efficiency of the receiver will not be lowered by imperfect tube contacts.—Radio News.

To Make Handy Torch for Soldering Joints

The small alcohol torch would not stay lit in a high wind and the blow torch was out of order, so the following was improvised in order to solder the antenna joints on a recent installation:

First, a small baking powder can with a cover was secured and a hole was punched in the cover. Next a piece of cotton waste was rolled into a ball and a piece of stiff wire was twisted around it in the form of a handle. The handle was passed through the hole in the can top and the burr on the punching pressed down so that it gripped the handle.

Quick and Easy Method of Soldering These Outside Joints.

After preparing the joint to be soldered in the usual manner, the ball of waste is soaked in gasoline and set on fire with a match. The blazing waste is held under the joint until the flux flows, and then the joint is touched with a piece of wire solder. A further application of heat causes the solder to flow in the joint.

When finished with the torch, put the ball of blazing waste into the can and the cover fitting into place will extinguish the flame.—Radio News.

Preparing for Y. M. C. A. Season

Big Banquet on October 1—All Departments Getting Ready for Busy Fall and Winter Season.

J. Addison Jones of Poughkeepsie is to be the speaker for the men's banquet at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday, October 1, at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Jones is an orator and a man of inspiration and power. Those who heard Cooper of Washington will have a like treat in hearing Jones.

This is the beginning of the program for the fall work of the Association. The directors and general secretary are pleased with the indications of a prosperous year.

The new men on the staff will mean much to the greater programs of the Y. A. W. Duley has already proved he is A-I man. He comes as an experienced and trained college athlete who knows his work and makes his position as physical director felt in the community. He is now giving personal attention to the supervision of repairs and improvements. The gymnasium floor has been scraped with an electrical sandpaper machine. It is an excellent maple floor and is to be finished in a way highly recommended by the Narragansett Machine Company which are specialists on gymnasium floors. The building and especially the gymnasium, baths and bowling alleys will be ready for inspection the day of the banquet.

The filtration plant is working night and day. The booster heater recently installed keeps the water at the proper temperature.

Already great interest in shown in the bowling alleys. Ten new sets of the best pins have arrived and the management of the alleys is in the hands of a competent man. From the present outlook there is reason to believe that this season will excel any in the past years.

Mr. Duley will be introduced to the audience as physical director and will tell of his plans for the fall and winter months.

Chester R. Hall, who has excelled so well as boys' work director, is the right man in the right place. His work with and for boys has proven to be of the best. He will have a part in the evening's program.

Anson Hurd comes to Kingston October 1st as assistant secretary. His duties will be with the membership in the senior department and some special time given to boys' work under the boys' work director. Mr. Hurd is a native of Newburgh, a graduate of the high school of Hartford, Conn. He has had some business experience and a year's work in Y. M. C. A. service. He is twenty-two years of age and has definitely decided for Association work.

The Women's Auxiliary are to prepare the banquet and the main item on the menu is chicken pie. Telephone your request for reservations. This men's banquet is open to members and friends of the Association.

The membership of the Y is daily increasing. The month of October will be a big membership month. Ernest Acker, the chairman, is desirous of seeing the largest number yet make use of the many and varied privileges of the association. As to the current year's canvass, this will take place in November and under the direction of an experienced man. The association needs $10,000 yearly aside from its general receipts. This canvass is to be made by directors, members and friends of the association.

DUSO MEETING AT NEWBURGH FRIDAY

President Naylor, of Port Jervis, has called a meeting of the Duso League to be held in the office of the superintendent of schools in Newburgh Friday. The Duso League has charge of all athletic sports in which the high schools of Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange counties are participants, and the meeting will be for the purpose of hearing reports of committees, electing officers, and considering proposed amendments to the constitution.

Able to Endure Long Periods of Fasting

Some curious facts with respect to the capacity for fasting as exhibited by various animals are cited by Siegmund Urahn in the Umchau (Frankfurt), according to the Detroit News. He begins by observing:

"The power of the camel to do without taking food is regarded in most works on zoology as representing scientific peculiarities of animals. But if there were a general knowledge of the ability of many animals to fast for very long periods of time these instances would not be so overemphasized. It is, indeed, generally known that even mammals are able to fast for months during their winter hibernation, but it seems to be almost unknown that the same power exists among the lower animals. The power of fasting is much more widespread in them than was formerly supposed."

Mr. Urahn then refers to an experiment of his youth when he put certain snails which had already withdrawn into their shells and closed the opening thereof, as is their custom, into a box, whereupon he forgot them for a period of more than a year and a half. He supposed they were inevitably dead, but when he put them into a vessel filled with water, much to his surprise, they came out of their shells and crawled gaily about on the table.

Plants Set Traps for Unwary Insects

Certain plants, like certain people, require strong foods. Not satisfied with the nourishment derived from the soil, they require flesh and blood. Such plants exist by the consumption of insects and small animals, and are to be found in bogs and marshes in tropical countries. All carnivorous plants are endowed with a sense of taste, and a tasty morsel of meat is speedily devoured. The side-saddle plant, found in parts of America, sets water traps for its victims. This plant holds up to the sunlight vase-like leaves, around the mouths of which are glands that secrete honey. Tempted by the scent, the insects make their way across the leaves to the mouth of the plant; farther and farther they wander down the tube, looking for the honey. Detentive hairs prevent their exit and, tired and weary, they eventually fall into the pool secreted at the bottom of the leaf. The common sundew captures dragonflies and ants. Attracted by the gummy appearance of the rosy leaves, the feet of the visitors become securely fixed to the gum, and the red tentacles close in on the unwary insects.

Superficial Existence

We live in the sun and on the surface—a thin, plausible, superficial existence—and talk of music and prophet, of art and creation. But out of our shallow and frivolous way of life, how can greatness ever grow? Come now, let us go and be dumb. Let us sit with our hands on our mouths, a long, austere, Pythagorean lustrum. Let us live in corners, and do chores, and suffer, and weep, and drudge, with eyes and hearts that love the Lord. Silence, seclusion, austerity, may pierce deep into grandeur and secret of our being and so diving, bring up out of secular darkness the sublimities of the moral constitution. How mean to go blazing, a gaudy butterfly, in fashionable or political salons, the fool of society, the fool of notoriety, a topic for newspapers, a piece of the street, and for feeding the real prerogative of the russet coat, the privacy, and the true and warm heart of the citizen.—Emerson

Punctual Monarch

All the clocks at the royal estate at Sandringham for more than half a century have been kept half an hour in advance of standard time. The idea was introduced by the late King Edward VII when he was prince of Wales, and was borrowed from a neighbor, the late earl of Leicester, to whom at Holkham, in the early days of their married life, the then prince and princess of Wales were frequent visitors. It was the earl's custom to keep all the clocks at Holkham half an hour fast to secure punctuality. So punctual was King Edward in keeping his appointments that he gained the reputation of "never being late."—London Mail.

Pepsin Has Rival

Pepsin, the digestive substance derived from the pig and largely used by medical men in treating cases of digestion, finds a rival in pharmacy in "papain," a digestive ferment isolated from the juice of the half-ripe fruit of the papaw tree. This substance is said to digest fibrin and albumen more readily than pepsin does. The fruit is sometimes made into jam, though the necessary boiling would probably kill the digestive ferments. Anglo-Indians say that a tough steak becomes tender when placed for a few minutes between two slices of papaw fruit, or even placed near a papaw tree.

Japan Won't Sign League Protocol

Arbitration Agreement Part of General Disarmament Scheme—Japan Evidently Considering Consequences of Intervention in China.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Geneva, Sept. 26.—Japan today refused to sign the arbitration protocol proposed by the League of Nations.

The arbitration agreement was to be part of the general disarmament scheme fostered by Premier Ramsey MacDonald of England, and Premier Edouard Herriot, of France.

France wished arbitration to be arbitrary. A pact was drawn along that line.

Nearly all nations intimated their willingness to accept the arbitration protocol. The action by Japan came as a surprise, therefore.

Japan insisted upon the creation of a conciliation jurisdiction, which would enable the losing party in the international court to appeal to the court for a review of the case. Australia opposed such a move.

Japan's attitude towards the arbitration protocol was contained in a formal communication to the league.

In some quarters it is believed the disturbed situation in the Far East was responsible for Tokyo's action. Evidently the Japanese government is considering the consequences of intervention in China because of the civil war raging there.

The Pekingese Government and Soviet Russia are in dispute, which adds another complication in the Oriental situation.

So far Japan has made no move toward intervention, but there are indications that Japanese sentiment is swinging in that direction.

M. Adachi, Japanese delegate to the league meeting, issued a statement saying:

"It is with the greatest regret that, in the name of my delegation, I must register complete reserve from the entire protocol."

Three league of nations commissions were authorized to make preparations for a disarmament conference and to draw up the arbitration protocol. While Japan has refused to sign the protocol, it is believed, it will participate in the disarmament meeting next year. Whether or not the United States will take part has not been revealed.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Organizations.

The following lodges hold regular meetings this evening:

Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Junior Order United American Mechanics, Mechanics' Hall, Henry street.

Kingston Council 356 will hold their regular monthly meeting tonight at Pythian Hall commencing promptly at 7:30 o'clock. Following the meeting there will be a dance for the members and their friends and refreshments will be served. It is expected that there will be a large attendance.

Clinton Chapter, No. 445, O. E. S., will receive the "homecoming" visit of Miss Grace V. Merritt, grand matron of the order of the state of New York, at its regular meeting this evening. The staff of grand officers is expected to be present and the program will be of the occasion. A large attendance of members besides visitors from other chapters is anticipated. The grand officers will be guests at a banquet at Wiltwyck Inn at six o'clock.

She Says:

"I Am Thin"

Her Friends Say:

"She Is Skinny"

If she only knew that she could put on at least 50 pounds of good, healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrying about her peaked face and run-down looks. She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitamins that make flesh, "brave" appetite, builds up the power to resist disease and changes "way nervousness" into "way nervousness." But it's horrible, nasty stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are recommending and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which drug-gists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

A wonderful upbuilding medicine for children, especially after sickness, and sixty tablets only cost 40 cents. One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 50 pounds in 30 days, your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet.

Meanings Long Forgotten.

Heels were put on shoes to prevent a horseman's foot slipping in the stirrup. Buttons on the coat cuff date back to Frederick the Great, who put sharp buttons there to stop soldiers using their cuffs as handkerchiefs. The wedding ring originally symbolized a chain. Thousands of the things we use and things we say and do are remnants of a long-forgotten past. Habit keeps them alive, even though their real meaning is as obscure as their origin. —Capper's Weekly.

Bells With a History.

Rye church bells, which have a history dating back to 1390, are to be reborn. They had a great adventure in 1398, when the French landed at Rye, then a seaport, pillaged the town and carried off the bells to Normandy. Ten years later the men of Rye and Winchelsea sailed across the channel to recapture the bells, which they brought back in triumph. The famous peal has called Rye people to church on Sundays ever since. —London Times.

DALTONS AND THEIR LEGACY

The Story of What Happened When the City Called and the Country Called Back Again

By ELEANOR PORTER
Author of "Polypanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE legacy amounted to ten thousand dollars, and coming as it did from a little known, scarcely remembered relative it seemed even more unreal than the man who had bequeathed it.

"Now we can leave the farm," exclaimed Mrs. Dalton.

"Why, Sarah, do you think that is quite wise?" asked her husband.

"Wise? Of course it is," she returned decidedly. "Why, Caleb, don't you know?—we've always wanted to go to the city; and Cousin John said he'd give you a place in his store any time, so you'll earn something to start with right away. We never dared to before, you know, for you won't sure how you'd do; but now we've got all this money we shan't have to worry a mite. Oh, isn't it just splendid, Caleb?"

"Yes, but—" he hesitated.

"But there isn't any 'but,' Caleb," laughed Sarah, and turned to a boy of twelve and a girl of fourteen who entered the room at that moment. "We've got it all settled, children. We're going to Boston, sure, this fall."

"Oh, mother!"—Ethel's hands came together in ecstasy, while Fred whooped in glee.

"There, Caleb, I told you how it would be," smiled Mrs. Dalton as the door banged behind Fred; then, anxiously, "You wouldn't want to spoil it all, now, would you?"

"No; but—no, no, of course not," murmured Caleb.

This was in August. By the middle of September such household goods as the Daltons had planned to take with them were packed, burrapped, crated and labeled. It had been Mrs. Dalton's idea to sell the rest of the furniture on the farm at auction, but

"Oh Come, Now, That Ain't Going to Do, You Know."

Just here she encountered an unexpected but stubborn resistance from her husband. Consequently, the remainder of the goods were stored in the attic, and the farm was rented until the first of May.

"Cousin John" in Boston had received the news of their intended coming with cordial interest, and had already procured for them a six-room apartment in Roxbury; and it was in his thriving market and grocery store on Warren avenue that Caleb was to have a position as clerk.

Some weeks later when Mrs. Dalton saw her new home, she didn't know whether to laugh or to cry.

"Why, Caleb, I—I can't breathe—the rooms are so small!" she gasped. Getting settled was a wonderful experience.

At last the tiny "parlor" with its mirror-adorned mantel and showy gas fixtures—the pride of Sarah's heart—was in order; and, after that, Sarah made sure each day that three o'clock found her dressed in her best and sitting in solemn state in that same parlor waiting for the calls that were surely now long overdue.

Days passed, and her patience was unrewarded save for a sharp ring from a sewing-machine agent, and another from a book canvasser.

Sarah could not understand it. Surely, her neighbors in the block must know of her arrival even if those in her immediate vicinity on the street did not. Meeting a tall, slender woman, whom she had already seen three times, she spoke.

"How—how d'ye do?" she began timidly.

The tall woman started, threw a hurried glance around her, then came to the conclusion that the salutation was meant for herself.

"Good-morning," she returned, then hurried along through the hall. Sarah stood looking after her with dazed eyes.

"Why, how funny!" she murmured. Three days later the two ladies again met at the outer door.

"Oh, how d'ye do! Nice day, ain't it?" began Sarah, hurriedly. "You—you live here, don't you?"

"Why—yes," said the woman, smiling a little.

"I do, too—on the top floor. 'I'm all settled, now,' announced Sarah, stumbling over the words a little.

"Is that so?" returned the woman politely, but without enthusiasm. Sarah nodded.

"Yes, all ready for callers. I—I hope you'll come soon," she finished with sudden courage.

"Thank you; you are very kind," murmured the woman, as she smiled and turned away.

The tall woman did not call, and Sarah never asked her again. A few words from Cousin John's wife at about this time opened Sarah's eyes, and taught her not to expect to become acquainted with her neighbors.

Sarah was not the only member of the family who had found trials by the way. Ethel and Fred had entered school, and at first they came home each afternoon with weary faces. New methods of study, recitation, discipline, and even of recreation puzzled and frightened them.

To Caleb, the city was a thing of noise, hurry and more people than he had thought existed. Early and late he worked in the store.

"I don't like it," he would say sometimes to his wife; "I don't like it, Sarah."

December, January, February and March passed; and the first of April brought a letter from the lessee of the farm asking if he was to have the place through the summer.

"Of course he can have it," declared Sarah. "Just as if we wanted it again!"

"Yes, yes, of course," murmured Caleb. "I'll write later on."

It was an early, and a wonderfully beautiful spring that year.

Sarah grew restless indoors. Downstairs, on each side of the big front door was a square-yard patch of puny, struggling grass; and it was these two bits of possibilities that put a happy thought into Sarah's head. She bought a trowel and some flower seeds and set resolutely to work. She had dug the trowel into the earth four times, and was delightedly sniffing the odor from the moist earth when the janitor appeared.

"Did ye lose something, ma'am?" he asked suspiciously.

"Lose something?" laughed the woman. "Of course not! I've found something, William. I've found a flower bed. I'm going to have the prettiest one ever was."

"I won't do, ma'am, 't won't, really, now. I'm sorry, but the boss won't stand it."

It was that night that Caleb brought out the paper and pen to write the letter which would lease the farm for another six months. Twice he dipped his pen in the ink, and paused with no word written. Finally he spoke.

"I'm going to give him some hints, Sarah. He won't know how to run some of the things, I'm sure. If he should plant the meadow lot to potatoes, now, it—"

"And, Caleb," cut in Sarah, "be sure and send word to his wife about the roses; if she don't spray 'em real early, the bugs and worms will get an awful start."

There was another long silence, broken this time by the children's entrance.

"Mother," began Fred discontentedly, "don't they ever go fishing down here, or swimming, or anything?"

Sarah sprang to her feet with a nervous little laugh.

"Caleb, we—we might go up home just for—for a visit," she said.

"Hurrah!—let's!" crowed Fred, and Ethel clapped her hands.

It was a jubilant four that left the North station a few days later, and it was a still more jubilant four that arrived in the village at the foot of the green hills.

"Oh, don't it look splendid and roomy!" cried Sarah, as they reached the turn where they could see the farm-house. "And don't the air smell good?"

Just at dusk on the third day Caleb found his wife in the old summer-house. Wrapped in shawls, she was fastening vines to the trellis.

"Well, Sarah, I—I s'pose I'd better settle up with West; now, I hain't yet, you know."

Sarah nodded, without speaking.

"Things look first-rate, now, but—I've got my doubts of West. I—I wish I could handle them myself."

Sarah threw a quick glance at his averted face.

"Well—why—don't you?" she almost whispered.

"Sarah, would you—would you come back? Do you mean it?" cried Caleb, with a swift joy in his eyes.

Sarah burst into tears, and threw herself into her husband's arms. "Oh, Caleb, I—just would! I—I've wanted to ever so long, but—I just wouldn't own up."

Society Notes

Roth-Markle.

Victor H. Roth of 320 Lucas avenue and Lula G. Markle of 20 St. James street were united in marriage Sunday, September 21, at the parsonage of the Reformed Church, the Rev. Mr. S. P. Prosser officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Slicker were the attendants. The groom is an employee of the Kingston Trust Company. The bride was employed by the New York Telephone Company.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop are celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding today, at their home, 101 Green street. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop were united in marriage in this city, September 26, 1894, by the Rev. William F. Anderson, who was pastor of the St. James M. E. Church at that time. Mr. Bishop presented his bride of thirty years with a new wedding ring and their many friends extend congratulations.

Somerville-Forbes.

A quiet wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon, September 21, at 3 o'clock at St. Mary's parish house, when Carl Somerville of Phoenix and Margaret Forbes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Forbes of Pine Hill, were united in marriage by the Rev. Father Scully. A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Jamieson, Sr., at 80 Bruyn avenue. After a wedding trip they will reside in Phoenix.

Celebrates Birthday.

On Wednesday evening, September 24, a number of friends of William Boyd of Brooklyn surprised him at the home of his sister and brother on Abel street. The occasion was Mr. Boyd's seventy-third birthday, which day and evening found him in the best of health and his usually good spirits. During the evening several vocal and piano selections were given by some of the guests present. The Virginia reel was joined in by nearly everybody, from the youngest child to the "real boy," of the evening, Mr. Boyd, himself, who enjoyed it immensely. A very bounteous supper followed, one of the special attractions of which was a very beautiful and toothsome birthday cake sent to Mr. Boyd by his daughter, May Boyd, who was unable to be present but who did her part royally, nevertheless. Nearly midnight everlastingly wished Mr. Boyd many more birthdays as happy and healthy as this had been and went home with memories of a very good time.

Port Ewen.

Port Ewen, Sept. 26.—Division No. 1, of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church will serve a peach short cake supper in the chapel Tuesday, September 30. The following is the menu: Ham, scalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, baked beans, beefs, wheat and rye bread, peach short cake, coffee, tea. At 8:15 o'clock an entertainment will be given by Port Ewen and Kingston talent. Ice cream will be on sale. A silver offering will be taken.

There is no school in Districts No. 1 and 13 on account of the School Conference in Kingston.

Division No. 1, of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church will present the "Womanless Wedding" by Port Ewen talent in the near future.

Miss Hilda Hotelling of Edgewater, N. J., is spending her vacation at the home of Mrs. Carey Secor at Stout avenue.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 26.—Railroad stocks were the chief support of the stock market today. In other depart- ments it moved somewhat irregularly with the general trend of prices downward.

St. Louis and San Francisco Preferred sold up to a new high at 83½, a gain of 20 points over the low of the year, while the common was in new high ground at 30½. Lehigh Valley gained 2½ at 60½. Lacka- wanna moved up 1½ to 140. Sea- board Air Line Common and Preferred moved up fractionally and the junior bonds of these systems were all higher in the listed bond market.

Sharp advances featured the cot- ton, grain and bond markets, the last mentioned being favorably af- fected by the increase in reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks. Cotton gained about 90 points, corn 3 cents, bushel and wheat 2 cents.

Specialty stocks again were pushed forward. American Hide and Leather and Central Leather, Common and Preferred, selling more than a point higher than on the average.

Motor and public utility stocks continued the forward movement. Studebaker equalled its best previous record at 42 and Brooklyn Edison at the head of the public utility group made a new high at 119½.

Stewart Warner and Stou- berg the leading motor accessory stocks, were active at higher prices, Stewart Warner gaining 2 points at 58.

High priced specialty stocks fea- tured the market in the last period. On heavy trading many of these stocks were sent to new high prices for the year.

Oil stocks were again under at- tack with Cosden the weakest stock on the board. On heavy selling Cosden went down to 23½ for a loss of 2 points from the high of the day. Standard Oils were steady. Market leaders did not join the movement. American Can, United States Steel and General Electric selling slightly under the best levels of the day.

Giant Dirigible Reaches Berlin

Last of Germany's Airships, Soon to Become Property of United States, Completes Farewell Trip Over Fatherland.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—Germany's greatest dirigible, the Z R-3, near- ing the end of its farewell trip over the Fatherland before its delivery to America in part payment of the pen- alties imposed by the Versailles treaty, reached Berlin shortly before 10 o'clock today. A frenzy of en- thusiasm greeted the giant sky cruiser.

The Z R-3 followed the historic street Unter den Linden, so low in its flight that windows shook from the vibration of its motors.

Though familiar with the Zeppel- in's appearance from war time ex- perience, Berlin residents streamed toward the airdrome at Staaken, the training site of some of the most famous pilots of the war.

Word of the ZR-3's progress over north Germany since its departure from Friedrichshafen at 9 o'clock yesterday had stirred Berlin to keen anticipation.

Steamer headlines in morning newspapers heralded the Zeppelin's triumphal arrival and scored the terms of the treaty which makes the dirigible the last Germany can pro- duce.

"Last Germany Zeppelin's tri- umphal flight," one headline read. The text following pointed out to all Germany the proud achievement of the ZR-3's crew. The farewell flight was discussed as a national affair.

The Allies were bitterly assailed, in editorial comment, for depriving Germany of chances for further progress in aircraft construction. Under the Versailles treaty, the Zeppelin plant which produced the ZR-3 will be torn down after the dirigible makes its departure for America, probably in the latter part of next week.

Radio reports received from the air cruiser, told of its arrival at Stettin at dawn after a successful night cruise over the Baltic Sea, fly- ing a course along the coast toward Koenigsberg.

The motors stood the test perfect- ly on the flight. The American commission aboard, including Cap- tain George W. Steele, Commander Sidney M. Kraguse and Lieutenant Karl Schmidt of the United States Navy and Major Harold Geiger, of the United States Army, expressed great satisfaction with the ships showing.

Woman Poisoner Finds Love Dead

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 26.—Denial that Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, in jail in Marion county charged with murdering her husband, Wilford, in a "love pact" with Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, was on a hunger strike, was made today by Sheriff Vogt fol- lowing the circulation of reports that the comely widow had refused food since she had arrived there. The sheriff admitted, however, that Mrs. Sweetin had eaten but lightly. Today, three days after she had confessed her crime, Mrs. Sweetin openly renounced the all-consuming love which prompted her to adminis- ter arsenic to her husband. Of Hight, her "perfect love" she said: "I never want to see that man again—never."

"He made me do it. I didn't want to kill Wilford. When Hight first suggested it I said I would not but he kept after me, telling me to do it. I argued for a month but I guess I was in his power for anything he said I thought I had to do it."

"It was hard to give Wilford poison. When he didn't die the first time I gave him the arsenic. Hight came to the house. He handed be a peach and slipped me a note which said to give him some more. In fact all the time my husband was living in bed sick. Hight came to me with these awful notes urging me to place more arsenic in his victuals. I couldn't control myself."

But for Hight the all-consuming fire still burned.

"I know she loves me," he de- clared in his cell in the dingy, old fashioned Nashville jail. "She's just talking now. It can't be other- wise."

SCHOOLING

THE governor of the state was look- ing for a school to which to send his daughter. The capital amused it- self with speculations. Certain ladies withheld registration of their children until the matter should be decided and results published, and certain others registered in both of the city's leading educational institutions. Mrs. Browne and Mrs. Gray were discussing the subject over their tea one afternoon.

Olude Hall, asserted Mrs. Gray, must be the great man's choice. Mrs. Gray's own daughter went to Olude Hall. At Olude Hall was a sense of tradition; the school turned out ladies; their graduates knew how to enter, and, a far more difficult matter, how to leave a room, at Olude Hall one somehow learned to carry on an entertaining conversation.

Mrs. Browne bridled. Mary Browne went to the Capital academy. Here they turned out scholars. Their alum- nae were honor students in college, and most of them went to college! Moreover, they were conspicuous af- terward in the world. Mrs. Browne was tired of people who couldn't write an English sentence or spell correctly.

Meanwhile, the governor was paying a business call on an old friend, who had that year started a new school of which Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Browne had never even heard.

"You know," the head was saying, "it would be sheer dishonesty to blind ourselves to the fact that your daugh- ter will have great social responsibil- ities to meet. It's clear that you are presidential timber, Frank. Children learn most from one another, and from my children she won't learn the give and take of world-wide society. That's really important for meeting life, and it's the part of old friendship to let you know our weak points."

"Yes, I've already talked with Mrs. Gray," smiled the governor.

"And our efficiency in passing exam- inations will hardly come up to the standards of Capital academy," went on the governor's friend.

"I've also seen Mrs. Browne," inter- rupted the governor.

"Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Browne would call my educational ideas old fash- ioned," she ended.

"Praise be for that," said the gov- ernor. Then he himself took the floor. "Here is another old-fashioned idea: Your school, I believe, will not spend its days in doing details only, you will put fundamental facts above form; you will, if I know whereof I speak, encourage imagination and independ- ence—the qualities lack of the habit of aiming at big things."

HOT DAYS CAUSE OF CAR TROUBLE

There Must Be Sufficient Quantity of Water Circulated to Care for Heat.

(By EDWIN GREEN, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)
These hot days will cause your automobile to tell you—to the best of its ability—just what condition it is in.
There is no reason why it should over-heat, for it has been designed to operate in hot weather. Even when the mercury climbs upward and the sun drives you into the shade it should not steam or boil.

The amount of cooling depends in part upon the size of the cooling system and the rate at which the water is circulated through it. The water must carry away the heat from the cylinders to the radiator, give up the heat and return for more. That means that there must be a sufficient quantity of water circulated fast enough to take care of the heat. This is the problem the engineer must solve for his particular car.

Upholstery Injured.
Many owners do not realize that the leather upholstery gets dry and loses its new appearance when exposed to the hot sun. When applied to the car, the leather contains a certain amount of natural oil which is essential to its life. As soon as this oil is gone the leather loses its pliability, becomes dry and is likely to crack and peel. One of the most effective ways of shortening the life of the upholstery is to expose it to the glare of the summer sun for hours at a time. The heat draws out the natural lubricant, leaving the leather dull and lifeless.

As a protective measure, if not for your own comfort, take pains to leave the car in the shade or to raise the top. If the leather shows signs of wear or becomes dry, treat it with a leather dressing to restore it to its original softness.

Watch Battery.

When the weather is warm you should watch the battery carefully and examine it once or twice a day for heating. This is especially essential if you are touring. Put your hand on the top connectors. If they feel more than blood warm take the temperature with a thermometer, and if the thermometer indicates 100 degrees or more burn all the lamps on the car while driving. This will serve to relieve the battery and prevent overcharging. If the temperature is dangerously high it may even be necessary to stop and remove the battery cover so as to allow the battery to cool off. Remember that a temperature of 110 degrees is dangerous and that a temperature of 120 degrees will probably ruin the battery permanently.

When the car reaches a certain speed an automatic switch cuts in the generator and current flows to the battery to charge it.

Tighten Windshield Nuts

On many makes of car the windshield is held in place by steel arms, which protrude through the cowl and are fastened on the under side by a nut and lock nut. Sometimes these nuts work loose, with the result that the shield is allowed to move slightly.
The first evidence of this is seen in cracked finish in the vicinity of the windshield supports. In making the periodic inspection for loose nuts and bolts these windshield supports should not be forgotten.

Cut Battery Separators

It is possible to cut the little wooden separators used in the storage battery by means of one of the trimming boards that almost any office has.
This board comprises a knife with a handle, the forward end of the knife being riveted to the board, so that it can be lifted and lowered. Absolute accuracy can be achieved in cutting the thin slivers of board with this device.

Simple Suggestions

to Help Motorists

You will reach the end of a perfect day of motoring with less weariness in your system and fewer aches in your legs if you will:

Feed gas with the hand throttle control now and again instead of with the foot.

Hold your eyelids closer together when the road is wide and the sun glaring.

Grip the steering wheel at different points and thus change the position of your arms.

Run slower over rough roads rather than hurry and try to steer around the bumps.

Always shift to neutral when stopping for traffic rather than remaining in gear and holding the clutch out, and use the hand brake occasionally so as to rest the right foot.

Starter Circuit Quite

Simple in Construction

The starter circuit is as simple as a house bell circuit. The current is supplied by the storage battery through a heavy cable, the circuit being closed by the starter switch. Instead of a return wire from starter to battery, the return current flows through the car frame, one terminal of both battery and starter being grounded.

On most cars the pinion on the starter motor meshes with teeth cut in Starter Circuit is Simple.

the flywheel, while the starter shaft on which the pinion is mounted is spirally cut. When the starter pedal is depressed the starter motor begins to spin and thus screws the pinion gear (which is automatically prevented from rotating) out to the end of the shaft and into mesh with teeth on the flywheel. As soon as engine starts, the flywheel runs faster, screwing the pinion back out of mesh.

Ordinary starting troubles are weak battery, short circuit in cable or starter switch, dirty switch, loose connections, brushes worn, or commu-tator dirty. Dirt or gummed oil on the starter shaft may prevent the pinion from meshing. — Popular Science Monthly.

Short Cut When Pitted

Valve Requires Grinding

In cases where a badly pitted valve requires grinding, here is a short-cut.
Cut a piece of emery cloth in dimensions a little bit wider than the valve seating and twice as long and then double it over so that both surfaces are cutting surfaces. Next cut a hole in the cloth so that the valve stem may be passed through and the emery cloth brought close up against the valve head. The valve is then placed in position for grinding under comparatively high pressure. Both sides of the emery cloth will conform to the valve head and the seating and if the valve turns and the emery cloth remains stationary, the valve will be ground on the upper emery, whereas if the cloth revolves, the valve seating will be ground on the lower emery.

CONGRESSMAN INDICTED FOR CIDER-MAKING.

Congressman John Philip ("Farmer") Hill, of Baltimore, Md., a decided "wet," is shown dispensing 2.75 per cent cider to some of the 1,500 guests who recently visited him in his "back yard farm," where he raised the apples which produced the cider. The cider was dispensed to test the dry laws, but dry agents didn't disturb the party. However, as a result, Congressman Hill has been indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for possessing wine and cider, manufacturing wine and cider, and maintaining a nuisance through the manufacture of the beverages.

Joe Bush Is Most Promising Hurler.

The Cubs' scout was watching the Greenville (Miss.) club of the Cotton States league play one balmy day, and noticed the good work of Joe Bush. The windy city outfit started negotiations, and Bush got in with the fast fellows. He's a pitcher with a future, judging from his good showing so far, but don't get him "mixed up" with Leslie Joseph Bush, who twirls for the Yanks.

Changing Style at Bat Hurts Lutzke

One argument that can always be found in baseball relates to changing a batsman's style without seriously affecting his hitting power.

Lutzke, a good fielder, was hitting well in the Cleveland training camp this spring. Cleveland decided that Lutzke would not be a valuable batsman in the American league because he invariably hit to one spot. Lutzke, in the language of the game, was a "dead" right field blitzer.

The Cleveland coaches set about to change his style at bat so that he could hit to all fields. They kept working on this and as the seasons lengthened the hitting ability of Lutzke decreased. Since the season opened Lutzke has gotten but one extra base hit, and he drove in two runs. It was a three-bagger and the ball was hit—to right field.

Padgett Fills Gap

Tossed into the breach made in the Boston infield by the tragic death of Boeckel last spring, Padgett, the rookie, has made good in the Boston infield. He was secured from Memphis. In desperation, Baneroff inserted the Southern leaguer at the hot corner. His pluck and his timely hitting won him the place.

The release of Outfielder Flynn was announced by Al G. Eckert, president of the Springfield association club.

An eastern baseball team traveled by airplane, but from the score several players never got back to earth.

Home runs in the major leagues have been less numerous this year than in any of the past three seasons.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn club, wears glasses and a huge diamond ring when he coaches.

Birmingham has purchased First Baseman Micky Heath and Pitcher Dick Didier from Ottumwa of the Mississippi Valley league.

Outfielder George Rhinehardt, leading blitzer of the South Atlantic association, has been sold by Greenville to Memphis of the Southern association.

Eddie Roush, star outfielder of the Reds, is said to have agreed to accompany the Giants on their tour of Europe next fall and winter with the White Sox.

In the whole history of the Blue Ridge league only two triple plays have been made, and both by the same club, Waynesboro, against the same team, Hanover.

Patsy Donovan strengthened his Jersey City team through a deal with Newark in which he acquired Gene Sheridan, third baseman, and Sid Agnew, an outfielder.

Tom Yerecker, veteran pitcher, given his release by teams in both the Blue Ridge and Eastern Shore leagues this season, decided to turn umpire and is handling the indicator for the Shore league.

The Braves have purchased Dave Harris, hard-hitting outfielder from Greensboro of the Piedmont league, and have also signed Ed Brandt, a left-handed pitcher, who hails from Wallace, Idaho.

Outfielder Jess Altenburg, former Michigan university star, who played with Reading, Toronto and Newark in the International league, has signed with the Allentown (Pa.) Independent team.

Senators Have "Easy" Opponents

In Boston, White Yankees Meet Philadelphia—Two More Wins Necessary for Giants If Brooklyn Is Successful.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 26.—The American League race, with the Senators leading by a margin of two games, today drew the attention of all fandom.

After a lay off of one day, during which the National League race was drawn closer to a decision through the New York victory over Pittsburgh, the Senators were to open today against the Boston Red Sox and the Yankees, second place club, were to engage the Athletics in Philadelphia.

Both teams fighting for the American League championship were to meet clubs rated as "easy" in baseball circles but the Athletics ever have been trouble makers and are strong enough to give any club a battle.

In Boston the Senators admittedly are meeting a club which figures to give them less trouble than do the Athletics with New York.

Washington, leading by two games, can get no worse than a tie now if they win two of their remaining four games and the Yankees are victorious in four straight. The Yankees can win their fourth straight pennant by winning four straight if Washington loses three three out of four.

The Giants and Dodgers are left alone at the top of the heap in the National League. Two more victories are necessary before the Giants clinch their pennant, provided Brooklyn wins its two remaining games.

Stiff Opposition Is Needed in Training

Connie Mack, explaining the bad slump of his Philadelphia Athletics at the start of the season, says it was due to the lack of good practice games. He concludes that more important than warm weather in the Southern training camps is stiff opposition. In 1923 the Athletics were sent against major league teams in their spring practice games and the result was that Philadelphia got a flying start and was right on the heels of the pace-making Yankees until mid-season. This year the Athletics' practice games were mostly with high school teams and minor college nines. They started the major-league season unprepared and immediately went on a long slump.

PITCHERS USE FEW CURVES IN DRILLS

Most Ball Players See Only Straight Stuff as Rule.

Baseball is a different game from any other in the world. The batting practice indulged in by the players is proof of this, writes Tom Swope in the Cincinnati Post.

Ideal batting practice pitching, in the opinion of all players with whom we have talked, is of a sort any novice should be able to hit.

Big leaguers without number have told me it is proper for the pitcher to lay the ball over the plate with nothing on it during batting practice. Any pitcher who tries to fool the batters during practice immediately is called down.

One player explains the policy of such batting practice in this way: "When we can step up there and hit the ball a mile in practice it gives us confidence. We can do this only against straight pitching."

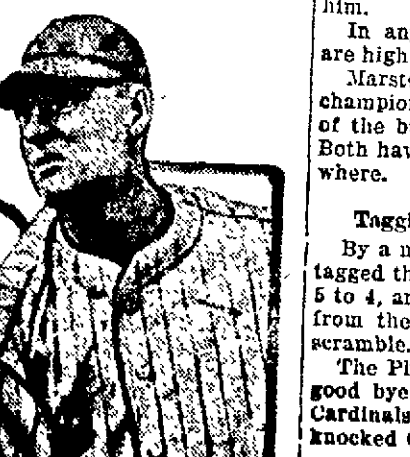

"And when we hit them solidly in practice the other team, seeing us do so, begins to worry."

"To my mind that explanation doesn't explain. It states the case from the ball player's point of view, but I don't understand why a player should think that way."

"Every ball player knows that those solid raps he hits in practice are made against 'nothing.' Why, then, should a batter feel good over one of that kind, or an opponent worry about it?"

"In nearly all things practice is held to gain perfection. Why, then, should not ball players who are weak against curve balls hit at curve balls exclusively in batting practice, so as to correct this weakness?"

K. H. S. Eleven Meets Alumni

Saturday at Athletic Field—Several Changes in Schedule—Track Team Working Out.

The track team under the supervision of Captain Clark is showing steady improvement. Last Friday the cross country team took a five mile jog and every man finished. Harold Shurter set a pretty fast pace but only a few runners lagged behind. Last Monday the same bunch took a two mile run and Wednesday they covered three miles at a good pace. The men who are showing up the best at these practices are Hooper, Shurter, Leverett, Smith, Neasale, Scanlon. The sprinters are having short workouts each night. Their practice consists of learning to start and a little sprinting. The broad jumpers are lengthening out more every night. The pole vaulters are following this example.

The varsity football team will face the Alumni tomorrow afternoon at the Athletic Field. The game will be called promptly at 3. The Alumni will line up as follows: Carroll and Hoffman ends, McLane and Johnson guards, Len O'Reilly at the pivot position. In the backfield Muller will play quarter, Longyear and Leverett halves and Hasbrouck full. This combination will probably make the boys from the high school step out. The high school will line up with Bradley and Rice ends, Schults guards, Simonetti center. In the team from left half position (calling signals), Disch will play the other half. Flanagan will hit the line from quarterback's position, and Tetley will quarter from fullback.

The football schedule has seen several changes because of the game with Union Froch team which will be played at Schoenectady on October 11. Below is the schedule for 1924 season:

September, 27—Alumni at Kingston.
October 4—Kingston at Albany.
October 11—Kingston at Union College.
October 18—Kingston at Middletown.
October 25—Port Jervis at Kingston.
November 1—Peekskill at Kingston.
November 8—St. Stevens at Kingston.
November 15—Kingston at Newburgh.
November 22—Poughkeepsie at Kingston.
November 27—Oakwood at Kingston.

Semi-Finals in Amateur Golf

Jones Meets Outimet and Marston Is Matched With Von Elm—Jones Expected to Beat Outimet and Capture Honors.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Merion Cricket Club, Ardmore, Penna., Sept. 26.—Fate, and the inevitable survival of the fit over the unit, more than defied Kipling today, when east not only met west in the semi-final round of that National Amateur Golf Championship but pursued the matter to its geographical limits and insisted north meet south.

The north was Francis Outimet of Boston; the south was Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, generally recognized as a better golfer than Outimet.

The east was Max Marston of Philadelphia, present title holder; the west was George Von Elm of Los Angeles, regarded as the most promising of the new generation. Von Elm has been playing in championships for several years but has just begun to take himself seriously.

From the standpoint of national significance, the Jones-Outimet match was the headliner. Both were former champions, around whom the glamour of romance has thrown a glow.

If any bets were made around the first tee this morning, they were that Bobby Jones would step right over Francis Outimet to the final round and thence to the honor so long denied him.

In any case his next two hurdles are high ones.

Marston not only is the existing champion but has the fighting heart of the bull dog. So has Von Elm. Both have the golf to take them anywhere.

Tagging Major League Bases.

By a margin of one run the Giants tagged the Pirates for the third time, 5 to 4, and this time eliminated them from the National League pennant scramble.

Would You Shave With a Saw?

A razor blade once used, when magnified, resembles a saw edge. The edges are rough and scrape the face. The Valet Auto-Strop Razor eliminates this. Simply strop it—and it again becomes smooth and keen. Good for many shaves.

Double-Header Here Sunday

Sunday afternoon, at the Fair Grounds the Colonials will play double-header with the D. & H. Generals. The upstate team is one of the strongest in semi-pro circles and has always been a good attraction here.

Football Season Begins Saturday

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Sept. 26.—While there are no games of thrilling importance on the schedule for tomorrow, the 1924 football season nevertheless will swing into its first big day of the year. There are a sufficient number of features, according to the schedules, to hold the eyes of the fans briefly at least.

Most interest probably will settle in the "Big Ten," where several teams of major importance last year will have action against minor opposition. The east will claim its share of attention in the games to be played by Bucknell, Columbia and Cornell. Other major eastern games are scheduled but the changes which have been made at the three mentioned schools make them the focus point.
